it is possible to produce.

The stock comprises Cambric, Jaconets, Nainsook and Swiss in matched sets, all-overs embroideries and flouncings. The majority of pattern we icontrol in this city, and they merit the careful examination of a refined and fashionable taste. They are of our own IMPORTATION. There are no middle men between me and the manufacturer. My transactions are direct with the producers on both sides of the Atlantic, hence it is but reasonable to claim that I can and do offer consumers unequal advantages.

AND TWENTY-THREE TONS OF GOSSYPTUM.

As Premiums for Farmers During the Present Year--The Farmers' Premiums, as Offered by Messrs. Geo.W. Scott & Co., Proprietors of Gossypium Phospho.

We have had frequent inquiries for the list of premiums to be offered by Messrs. G. W. Scott & Co., of the Gossypium Phospho com-Mr. G. W. Scott, the head of this firm, and he

"I have an advertisement ready for you, and bere it is. It contains, I believe, all the information that a man will require for entering the competition, and carrying his crops

It will be seen that the new list differs somewhat from the old ones. The first year the prizes wore offered for one acre crops. The second year they were made for five acre patches. This change was made by Messrs. Scott & Co. to increate the acreage brought under a high state of cultivation by the competitors. Their ide a was to benefit the state. They felt that every acre put in competition would help just that much. If they could multiply this intensive acreage by five the benefit to the state would be five fold. A change was made, however, by the objection from many small farmers that they were unable to set aside five acres for competition and to bring it to such a high state of cultivation as would warrant their expecting the premium.

This year in order to meet the demands of both classes, there are premiums for one acre patches and five acre patches. In order to encourage every one to try five acres who can possibly do so, any one of the five acres wiil be put in competition for the single acre premium, provided an unbroken ground is selected. It is possible, therefore, for a man who plants five acres to get the $250.00 prize and the $100.00 prize, or $350.00 in cash as premiums on five acres.

The advertisement of Messrs. Scott & Co. which appears herewith will explain all de-

The application for premium in Georgia should be mailed to the Hon, J. T. If not convenient for applicant to be present on day of award, he can authorize Colonel Henderson or any friend to act for him in the selection of the committee. The award will be made without reference to the quantity of Gossypium used on each acre, as one of the principal aims is to determine what quantity pays best. Each planter is, therefore left to exercise his own judgment as to the quantity he will use. It is our desire to have nething whatever to do with the applications or the award. We must therefore beg that none of our friends will send their applicatiors through us or ask us to select a committeeman. We wish all to be conducted by your own friends, and when the award is made we will cheerfully pay the premiums to the successful contestants

A REVIEW OF THE RESULTS

Which Were Achieved in 1885! Under the Competition of Messrs. Geo. W. Scott & Co.'s Prizes and Wonderful Array of Results.

In 1885 two hundred and eights of cotton lands were entered for the prizes offered by Messrs. Geo. W. Scott & Co. These acres were located in thirty-five different counties of Georgia, from White in the north of the state, to Quitman in the southwest. The largest yield was 1,579 pounds to the acre of clean lint cotton. Mr. G. W. Truit, of Troup county, who took the first prize, made 1,579 pounds of clean lint cotton per acre on a five acre patch. Mr. D. H. Ponder, of Henry county, made 1,511 pounds of clean lint cotton per acre on five acres. Mr. G. M. Davis, of Monroe county, who took the third prize, made 1,509 pounds of clean lint cotton per acre on five acres. These farmers used from four to seven hundred pounds of Gossypium Phospho to the acre. The average yield on the 285 acres in competition was 752 pounds of lint cotton to the acre.

Sixty-two acres of corn were in the competition in different sections of the state, and averaged 80 bushels to the acre.

These results were so encouraging, and meant so much to the farmers and to the state at large, that Messrs. Scott & Co. have enlarged their premium list for Georgia, and included Alabama and South Carolina in supplementary offers.

SPECIAL NOTE TO FARMERS.

It is important that sworn certificates of the measurement of the land in ecmpetition, and of the yield, shall be so carefully drawn and so accurately tested that a fair test is assured. No certificates that are not so drawn, and so tested will be admitted as testimony. The rules are simple, but they must be strictly observed. It will be noted that contestants appoint their own committee to examine the certificates and make the awards. Messrs. Scott & Co., specially provide that this shall be done, and that they shall have nothing to do with the whole mattor except to pay the premiums on the formal certificates of the committee that has been se ected by the contestants.

The above liberal offer explains itself. We urge every farmer who can possibly do so to take advantage of it and enter the competition. Every farmer who makes a trial will have a premium in the improved condition of his soil and in the lesson that intelligent farming teaches, even if he does not take one of the premiums that are offered. If one thousand Georgia farmers were to compete for these premiums it would be the most important step taken by Georgia in agricultural progress in

BILL ARP ON THE NEGRO. HE DISCUSSESTHE PECULIARITIES

OF THE RACE

And Says the Negro Has Done and is Doing a Vast

The negro problem seems to have broken out afresh and the negro is getting the worst of t now. The North American Review and Professor White and Governor Smith, and other philosophers have recently set the darkey down as a fraud so far as labor is concern-One complains that he is lazy and won't work, another complains that he is incapable of improvement and cannot keep up with progressive farming. Then again it is said that he keeps intelligent white labor from coming south, and so we have got an elephant on our hands and can't get rid of him. Northern republicans have turned against him because they can't vote him and so the poor darkey is losing ground and losing friends. The poorer classes of the south-that is the common laboring people—despise him and wish him well out of the country—His presence among them as a competitor for hire or wages or as a renter is odious to them. I know the sentiment of the tenants in my section and it is very hostile to the negro. They want him o go. It is very natural that the poor white should be unfriendly the same sentiment that caused the expulsion of the Chinese from Wyoming. Indeed they set up objections to the negro that cannot be against the Chinaman, for they set the Chinaman. the Chinaman, for they say to the chinaman, for they say to the chinaman that the negro has a contempt to the following poor folks know it. The chinaman negro poor folks know it. The had rather be the serf and ser man than to work on an equality with a poor man for better wages. My rich neighbor Mun-ford can get plenty of labor at low prices and orders his darkies around just about like he wed to before the war.

Well, now, we all look at this negro question from our own standpoint. Landlords like to employ them just because they can order them about. The love of dominion is strong in our race. They like to employ them because the darkey is easily settled with. He is careless of his meney and most always comes out a lit. darkey is easily settled with. He is careless of his money and most always comes out a little behind and that fastens him over for another year. They will put up with poorer shanties and fewer privileges. They will pick up some little things that don't belong to them, but a shifty manager makes it all back one way or another and is his own judge and jury over his hirelings. Many farmers mix their tenants from both races and say this gets up an emulation that is profitable say this gets up an emulation that is profitable all round, but my observation is that neither race like it and it is better to have all whites or all darkies. When a farmer has good, doile, industrious white tenants he is keep them, and so with the negroes. Every employer judges of the negro by his own interest and his own experience. So far as I am terest and his own experience. So far as I am concerned I prefer the white man now, for no man has better tenants than I have. They are my friends and I am theirs; but a few years ago I preferred the negro as a laborer. Nevertheless, I like to have some darkeys around, for they are always ready and always willing to do things in emergencies that a white man does not like to do and I do not like to ask him to do Fiver. and I do not like to ask him to do. Every southern white man, however poor, will maintain the independence of his family if he can. He will not do, nor let his family do, anything that looks like dependence or menial service. The cooking and the washing is still done by negroes, and they make the morning fires negroes, and they make the morning fires and bring the water and milk the cows. White folks even in the country have their social rank. The lines are dim and crooked, but there are lines. Whereas among the negroes there are none. Neither religion, nor morals, nor poverty have yet established any social caste among them. Bob Smith has just come from a two years' term in the chaingang, and goes around in the settlement like a here returned around in the settlement like a hero returned from the war. The negroes give him cordial welcome and listen eagerly to his experience. Bob declares that he had a first rate time, and he hated to come away wuss dan he hated to go dar. But Bob was a "trusty" and felt like he was a commissioned officer in the army. Bob says that two black rascals got away and he sot detrack dogs atter 'em and dev run and de dogs run, and dey run and de dogs run, and bimeby dey clime a tree and de old houn dog sot away off and look up in de tree and he open his mouf wide and say too-o-o uvem. too-oo uvem. mouf wide and say too-o-o uvem, too-oo uvem, too-oo uvem, and here cum de little fice dog and he look up and say, hit's a fak, hit's a fak; and den de gyard he cum a gallopin' up and pinte his gun up in de tree and say now tumble to de racket or I'll drap, you and shore nuf dem niggers jis cum down in a hurry I tell you—dey did dat for true. Bob seems to think it was you had conduct to a fact of the same true. was very bad conduct to run away from so good a place as Captain James' big farm in Jefferson county, where a darkey had more good vittles and more tobakker than he could eat up to save his life. Now I have known Bob for years and he is a better darky than the average, and this re-minds me of a letter I had today from a friend in North Carolina, who says: "Over here the negro is like metaphysics—the more studied the more new phases. Religiously and politically he is an enthusiastic fanatic. His whims and caprices are indeterminate quantities. He has neither gratitude, revenge, nor virtue. He is imitative but not inventive. Grammatically he is an objective case, socially a fraud and yet with all this he is about the best laborer we can have."

But suppose he is a failure as a progressive farmer, who does that hurt materially bu himself? Let the white man make progress and the negro will keep close behind him, for, as my friend says, he is a good imitator. In the middle belt that is black with negroes, the white landlords live away off and rent out to negroes, and then complain that they do not progress—do not make enough on the Of course not. Perhaps some Germans farms. Of course not. Ferhaps some Germans would make more if they owned the land, but as tenants it is doubtful. But after all, what is the use of complaining when there is no remedy in sight. The negro is here, here in his father's house, and is here to stay, so far as we can see. He has given us a great deal of trouble and anxiety since the war for his new guardians made a fool of him, but now there are forces at work that will geoner or there are forces at work that will sooner or later settle him down where his nature and interests assign him. It is a slow process but it is sure—the mills of the Gods grind slowly. One thing is sure, the negro has done and is now doing a vast amount of useful, progressive work at the south. He does all the heavy work of building railroads and cauals, and mining for ore, and cutting tim-ber, and making cotton and rice, and sugar cane. He is a willing worker and makes no strikes and has no envy of the rich. He is the only creature that is absolutely without envy of the rich. He will steal to gratify immediate wants but not from envy. He has no communism in his nature. In fact, he has no communism in his nature. In fact, he has more respect for a rich man than for a poor one or for himself. The great issue between capital and labor does not concern him or disturb his slumbers. I have great respect for our white laborers, our farmers and mechanics. All the sympathies of my nature are with them, but when I read of their exactions and demands—as made upon Mr. McCornick—I am discorted with read of their exactions and demands—as made upon Mr. McCormick—I am disgusted with labor unious. When they tell him he must not employ anybody outside of their union, it shocks the judgment of mankind. I a unire his spunk for shutting down and turning them all out. I saw Mr. Sam Noble do that once at Reme. The union sent a committee to wait upon him and notify him to discharge an apprentice, and I will never forget the towering rage and indignation that took possession of him. They got away from there quick and he discharged the whole concern for insulting him with such a demand. Labor and capital have got to work together in harmony and each must be reasonable. If capital was always kind and considerate there would be little need of unions. If labor was never imperious nor unreasonable it would always get the sympathy of mankind.

But we will not solve the negro problem right away. Let us wait a few days longer. The chaingang is diminishing in numbers, and yet I saw a convict on the train last week who was going for three months for stealing a blacksmith's punch that cost ten cents. For the like of that we could have almost might he race in shackles within the next twelve months—and we could thin out the white folks powerfully if all their little cheatings were punished. We are mean enough all round, but if I had the dead sure proof on that darky who stole Carl's gun Christmas while I was away off in Florida, I wouldn't bother the courts with him but I would the him spechind the barn and give him forty lashes save one, and he would let those gun alone the next time. We are morally certain who did it and have reason to believe he intended to boing it back after he had his big rabbit hunt with the other nigger, but he got scared and don't do it. ife didn't mean to steal it, but the gun is gone all the same. A good whipping gives more satisfaction all round than the chaingang, and the same. A good whipping gives more satisfaction all round than the chaingang, and costs less time and less money.

ONE OF CURTIN'S STORIES. The Great War Governor Tells About "Bloody-Minded Men."

From the Congressional Becord.

I do not like bloody minded men. I never did. For a like reason I did not like the commissaries or the contractors, who wanted the war to go on because they made money out of it, and when I visited the army I always hated to see, a when I visited the army I always hated to see, as I did see stuck up on 'trees, notices announcing 'embalming done at low prices." [Laughter.] As to these bloody-minded men, some of whom would wipe out everybody on this side of the house, these warriors who can never be appeased, they remind me of a noted character who lived in my fown years ago. He was an old fellow! I think he had been a wagonmaster in the revolution: that was the tradition of the town. He used to tell a story of his warlike achievements in battle, and he told it so often that he came to believe it, and when strangers would come to the little village in which we lived that he came to believe it, and when strangers would come to the little village in which we lived they would give "Captain Curzy". (that was his hame) a drink or two and get him to tell the story. The story as he told it was about like this: "At the battle of Monmouth," he would say, "although in the light horse, I fought that day on foot. I shashed with my sabre cuts one and two, and a head went off here and a limb went off there, until the blood actually ran into my shoes. [Laughter.] A pile of dead bodies surrounded me; I was excited, and I was still slashing away when I felt a touch on my shoulder. I looked up, and there was Washington! [Laughter.] I shall never forget the solemnity of his appearance or the gravity of his speech. He gazed at me for a moment without speaking, and then said, 'Young man, restrain your impetuosity! In the name of God do not make a slaghter house of the field of battle. [Renewed laughter.]

By Frank R. Stockton. [Copyrighted, 1886, by S. S. McClure. All rights reserved.] PART II.

When I reached the decrepid little house inhabited by Mr. Billy Haskell, I found the old man in his garden digging early potatoes and carefully searching the ground he turned up for every tubercle, no matter how diminutive its size. I dismounted and went up to him. and, as briefly as possible, told him what I had heard and why I had come, and asked him what he had to say about it.

Old Billy raised bimself up, and after having gazed a few moments at a little potato no bigger than a pea, he dropped it regretfully and then

I HEAR BILLY'S STORY.

"You're not the same gentleman as was here afore about this?" "No," said I, "he couldn't come today and "No," said I, "he couldn't come today and asked me to do so. But its all the same."
"Well, I wish he'd a come," said the old man querulously. He told me I was all right, and if Sairey Grome didn't give me half her last year's crap I could sue fur it an' git it."
"That was because he hadn't heard all the story," I said.
"He was a dif rent kind of a man," said Mr. Heskell with a cloud upon his brow. "He Haskell, with a cloud upon his brow. "He didn't go round listenin' to old women's tales about things they don't understand, sich as "If you thought your neighbor didn't understand the care of horses," said I, "and if you believe your animal was worth anything, you wouldn't have put him into her charge." "I don't want to hear nothin' more about that," said the old man, impatiently. "I agreed to furnish a hoss an' work on her place, an' I did it, an' she agreed to give me half a crap, and she didn't, an' there's the long an'

the short of it."

"Well," said I, "if you persist in your present frame of mind and will not consent to take fair wages for the work you have done, it is probable that you will get nothing, for I see plainly that you have no cose with which to see to law."

go to law."
"I don't want to go to law," said Mr. Has-"I don't want to go to law," said Mr. Has-kell, "an' to come down hard on an old wo-man. If Sairey Grome 'Il give me half her crap I won't ask her to pay for the hoss, an' we'll be friends again, jest as we was."

"Nonsense," said I, "of course she won't do that. If you obstinately persist in claiming what you know, as well as I do, you have no right to claim I shall have nothing more to do with you and you can take what you have right to claim I shall have nothing more to do with you, and you can take what you have earned, or let it alone, just as you please."

And I turned away to leave him.

"I never want to see you again," said the old man, his little gray eyes sparkling with anger, "a comin' here to onsettle people's minds when everythin' was a goin' on straight, an' it'll do me good if I ever hear that the other man's got her."

"Got who?" I exclaimed, stopping in surprise.

"Got who?" I exclaimed, stopping in surprise.

"Why that young lady, as you know well enough," he cried spitefully. "You needn't suppose as I'd-think you two fine gentlemen would consarn yourselves about two old peo, ple, as you didn't know, if you didn't expect to make somethin' by it. You're doin' it to please the young woman who had jest as much sense as she was handsome, an' if she'd a been let glone I could have showed her I was right, an' she'd a talked over old Sairey. The other an' she'd a talked over old Sairey. The other man is the best lawyer, an' the best hearted, an'knows how to git on a hoss better, an'I hope an knows how to git on a hoss better, an'I nope he may git her."

At this I laughed heartily, and rode away.

The next day I related to Mr. Curper the result of my interviews, avoiding, however, any reference to the old man's parting remarks.

"And now," said I, "the two can settle the matter between them as they please. I shall have nothing more to do with it."

"Nor I, with that part of it," said Curper, who had highly enjoyed my account of the latest phase of the affair, "though I believe if they were to take it into court their counsel might manage to string the case out several links further and make a deucedly good thing of it. But, though I have done with their part of the affair, I have not done with mine. I am on the track of Miss Janet, and I shall rome up with her yet."

"You don't mean to say," I exclaimed, "that you intend to push inquiries in regard to that young lady's identity, in spite of her expressed desire to remain unknown?"

"Yes, I do," said Curper. "I take an interest in this girl, and keeping her name back is just a whim, or a frolic. I suppose you will be surprised to hear that I have written to her, and requested an interview."

be surprised to hear that I have written to her, and requested an interview."

"Written to her." I exclaimed. "How did you get a letter to her?"

"There was very little difficulty in regard to that, he answered, "and Miss Janet will find that when she addresses herself incognito to a lawyer he will very soon know as much about her as about her business. She ought to expect that as a matter of course. You see that, although the letter was written with a type-writer, the address on the envelope was written with a pen, and in a lady's hand. I knew from the letter it was not Miss Janet's hand, and I fancied I had seen the hand-writing before, and yesterday afternoon I searched over a lot of notes, invitations and things of that kind that I have here, and it was not long before I found who addressed the note. It was Mrs. Morpeth."

Upon hearing this name, well known to me, I evinced an incrersed interest.

"When I had made this discovery" con-

Typined an incrersed interest.

"When I had made this discovery," continued Mr. Curper, "I had no hesitation as to my plan of action. I wrote a note to the young lady, addressing her by her nom de plume, but assuming, as a matter of course, that I knew all about her, and having briefly stated that I had attended to the case as far as possible under the circumstances, I said that it would be necessary for me to have an interview in order that I might confer with her in regard to further action."

"She will pay no attention to that," said I. "There you are mistaken," replied Curper, quickly. "As I have performed the service she desired of me—"
"Mainly through me," I enterrupted.

"And have arrived at a point where her assistance is necessary, it will be impossible for her, if she has any courtesy at all, to refuse to answer my note. Then, if she does not immediately disclose her identity, her answer will give me further clues, and I shall write to her sgain, and you may depend upon it, I shall be conferring with her personally in a week or ten days I happened to know, through Mrs. Grome, that the lady was out of town, but it did not accord with my principles to give Curper any accord with my principles to give Curper any information upon the subject.

"Yesterday evening," said Mr. Curper, "I called upon Mrs. Morpeth, who I had heard was still in town, and requested her to forward my letter. I made no explanations, and said nothing at all about the case, but I told her that it was necessary that the lady should have the note as soon as possible. Mrs. Morpeth locked very much surprised, and asked why I supposed she knew anything about the lady, to which I answered that, as she had addressed that person's note to me, I, of course, dressed that person's note to me, I, of course, concluded she knew where she was. She laughed, took the note and said she would forward it. I tried, in an easy sort of way, to draw her into conversation about Miss Janet, but I made very little out of her. She is a regular oyster of a woman when she chooses to

"What are the points," I asked, "about which you will consult with the young lady in case you should sneeeed in obtaining an interview?"

"Well," said Eurper, "when I wrote the note I hadn't thought of anything particular to say about the case, but now, since I have heard your latest accounts, I shall advise her to wash her hands of the whole business, and let the two old curmudgeons settle their quarrel as best they can; and then I shall endeavor to improve the acquaintance, for I find that I take a decidedly strong interest in Janet Floyd."

Floyd."

It was very lonely in town, and it was goodnews to hear that Mrs. Morpeth, a widowed lady, well known in society, had not gone into the country. I called on her that evening, and she seemed glad to see me. She did not allude to Mr. Curper's visit, but I saw no occasion for reticence in regard to the quarrel between Mrs. Grome and Billy Haskell, and I told her the story. I never saw any one enjoy a recital of the kind as Mrs. Morpeth enjoyed this. I had no idea how comical the affair was until I saw how she laughed at it.

"Mr. Curper told me," I said, "that he had called on you to ask you to forward a letter to

"Mr. Curper told me," Isaid, "that he had called on you to ask you to forward a letter to the lady who had employed him in this somewhat remarkable case, in which he has employed me. Of course I have no possible interest in this young lady—"

"Of course not," interrupted Mrs. Morpeth. "But how do you know she is a young lady?"

"She was fully described to me by Mrs. Grome, and Curper also had a description of her from the old man. But, as I was about to ask, do you intend to send Curper's letter to her?"

"I have sent it," said Mrs. Morpeth.

"You may think it none of my business," said I, "but as I have been called upon to act in this matter, I cannot help thinking that the person who has taken such a generous interest in these old people, should be protected from unwarrantable inquiries—as I consider them—into her identity. I have spoken to Mr. Curper on the subject, but my remarks made no impression on him."

"What a queer man Mr. Curper must be," said Mrs. Morpeth. "I have sent it," said Mrs. Morpeth.

so I told Billy, who'd talked about this before our quarrel, that if he'd buy a real good work horse that the neighbors would agree was young eneigh, and call all things square, I'd marry him, an' he could leave his old tumble down shanty an live here an' work the farm. So he agreed, an' we're to be married next month, so as he can be here for the fall plowin'. I guess it'll be a pretty good thing for me, fur I'll save the money I was goin' to pay him for his last year's hire, an' I kin keep him to his work a lot better when he's here on the spot than when he was livin' near a mile away."

I admitted that I thought Mrs. Grome had made a good bargain and congratulated her on the happy termination of the dispute with her neighbor; and then noticing that the demon plaque wasnot hanging in its place I ask-

"It's a pity you can'thave it, sence you like it so much," said Mrs. Grome, "an' if she hadn't come fur it in a reasonable time, I'd made up my mind to let you take it. But she did com

"Yes," said I earnestly, "he is a queer man. I wouldn't say anything against him, and, in-deed, there isn't anything to say; but that queerness of his, that determination to go ahead without regard to the opinion of his friends, and all that sort of thing, makes it highly undesirable, in my opinion, that he should be encouraged to force himself upon a person who, it is quite evident, is of a retiring disposition. Of course, as I said before, I take no interest in this lady, at least no more than any man would in a person who is—"
"Young and handsome," suggested Mrs. Morpeth Morpeth.

"Not at all," said I quickly, "but young,generous, and of a modest nature that shrinks from notice in a case of this kind."
"And having heard her described," said Mrs.

"And having heard her described," said Mrs. Morpeth, "you do not think Mr. Curper is the man who should make her acquaintance, and confer with her in regard to these old people?"
"No," said I, very decidedly, "I do not."
"Perhaps," said Mrs. Morpeth, "if it is real-

'Well. I don't know about that." I answered "Well, I don't know about that," I answered "But if I can be of any service in the matter, and if you and the lady think I could better state the case than Mr. Curper, who has not seen Mrs. Grome at all, whereas I have fully interviewed both parties, why of course I am willing to—do what I can,"

'Very kind, indeed, of you," said Mrs. Morneth.

"Is the lady," I asked, "likely to under-dand the legal aspects of a case like this? or is he too young, and—"

"Handsome," again suggested Mrs. Mor-

'Handsome has nothing to do with it," I answered. 'I simply want to know whether she is merely a fashionable young lady who might not be supposed to understand these things, or a studious, thoughtful girl of a higher range of intellect perhaps than one generally meets with in ordinary society, who would not only give herself up to generous. generally meets with in ordinary society, who would not only give herself up to generous impulses, but would take an intelligent interest in a legal question when clearly and plainly presented to her."

"By you?" suggested Mrs. Morpeth.

"No, not necessarily by me," I answered a little uneasily, "but by any lawyer who understood the case and could state it properly."

"Mr. Curper, for instance," said Mrs. Morpeth.

"Mr. Curper, for instance," said Mrs. Morpeth.
"No," said I quickly, "Curper couldn't do it. He doesn't know anything about the case except what I told him."
Upon this Mrs. Morpeth burst into a laugh; and, shortly afterwards, I left, feeling a good deal irritated that she should suppose, as her manner indicated, that I took any unusual interest in Janet Floyd, which, of course, was perfect nonsense. She should have known better.
In a few days I went to the sea shore, where I remained a month or more: returning to the

I remained a month or more; returning to the city at the time when nearly everybody was coming home from summer sejourns. One af-ternoon, a few days after my return, I found I tenoon, a few days after my return, I found I had some spare time on my hands, and instead of going home from the office I concluded to ride out to Ormsby park. When I reached the second lane beyond the bridge I thought it would be a good idea to drop in at Mrs. Grome's and see if she had sold her demon plaque; because, if her negotiations with her young lady had fallen through, I was very anxious to buy it. As I rode up the lane I saw by the garden gatea carriage, which I knew by anxious to buy it. As I rode up the lane I saw by the garden gatea carriage, which I knew by its appearance to be a hired one. The driver, who was sitting on the grass near by, rose and nodded to me, and I perceived that he was a man whom I had frequently employed myself. "Now," thought I. "if I were Curper, I'd stop and ask him who it is he has brought here." But I passed on, and, having tied my horse to the fence, was presently admitted by Mrs. Grome. As I entered the house I glanced around the little parlor, and saw that it contained no occupant but ourselves.

"Well," said I, "how do you get en with your dispute with Mr. Haskell?" I did not really care very much how they got on, but thought it not wise to immediately proclaim that the demon plaque was the purpose of my visit.

"Oh, we've settled all that," said she. "Mean' Billy are goin' to he married. There

"She's here now," said she. "She's in the garden picking a bunch of what she calls old-fashioned flowers, an' I'm packin' up this dish fur her to take away." And with these words the old woman approached a table on which the demon plague was standing in the midst of some old newspapers.

"Let me look at it a moment before you wrap it up," said I, glancing as I spoke toward the open back door, but perceiving no one in the garden. "I am really sorry to think that I shall not be able to see it again."

an' she give me a good price fur it, and that settled it. But I tell you what you kin do," said the old woman, glancing at me with a twinkle in her eye, as she proceeded to envelope the plaque in newspapers, "you kin settle the matter as me an' Billy did. You're a very good looking young man an' she's a handsome good looking young man, an' she's a handsom young woman. You marry her an' then both of you kin have this dish."
"Marry her!" I exclaimed. At this moment the back door was darkened, and the young lady who had been gathering old-fashioned flowers entered the room. I turned, and per-ceived that I had been married to her for more than a year!

My wife started with surprise. "What on earth are you doing here?" she cried.

"And you," I exclaimed, "are you—? did you?"

"Has my husband seen the plaque?"
she asked, stepping quickly towards Mrs.

Grome.
"Your husband!" exclaimed the astonished "Your husband!" exclaimed the astonished old woman, "of course he has. He wanted to buy it, It I'd a knowed—" And her look of amazement turned to one of sudden dejection as she thought of the bargain she night have made if she had known how mat-

"Now, this is too bad!" exclaimed my wife. "How did you happen to come here? I have been for ever so long trying to get this plaque to give you on your birthday, and I was so pxious that you shouldn't see it, or know anything about it, that I wrote a note to Mr. Curper and asked him to come and get this good woman out of her trouble, when I should certainly have sent you, if I hadn't wanted you not to see the plaque."

"But you see," said I, "Mr. Curper asked me to attend to the business, as he had no time."
"What an awfully provoking person he is!" she cried. "I wrote to him in such a way that he couldn't possibly find out who I was, and so couldn't tell you. But how came you not to say anything about coming here while you say anything about coming here white you were with me at the seashore?"

"Because," said I, "I was trying so get the plaque that I might give it to you."

"Well," said Mrs. Grome, "here is the dishall done up ready to carry away, an' as you two are married a ready, you can both have it without goin' to the expense of another weddin."

At this we laughed heartily, and took our leave. As we stepped together from the little torch, we met old Billy Haskell, who was oming around the house with a rake in his

" SO YOU GOT HER, DID YOU?"

"Hello," said he, with a look of sour sur-rise on his face, "so you got her did you?" "Yes," I replied laughing, "I got her." "Well," said Mr. Haskell, his venerable brow shadowed with disapprobation, "I'd a big sight liefer the other man had got her. I'd a had the money fur half last year's crap in my pocket now, if you'd a kept out of this busiess." And, so saying, he went his way.
"What does all this mean?" asked my wife, is I handed her into the carriage, and placed

"I'll ride back," said I, "close to your side and tell you all about it."

The plaque was presented to me in advance of my birthday, and placed in a good light, it was much admired by our friends and visitors.

Among these was Mr. Curper, to whom my wife and I had decided Miss Janet Floyd should not make herself known. should not make herself known.

"Where in the world did you get this thing?" said he, regarding the plaque with much interest. "It looks like a lawyer trying to infuence a reluctant client. If that queue gives way, it will be bad for the barrister."

Taking no notice of his unprofessional remark, I told him that the plaque had been procured from the old woman whom I had visited at his request.

"It's too bad!" he exclaimed. "I got no good at all out of that affair. The young lady hasn't answered my note, and I den't suppose he ever will. I have had my trouble for my

"What surprises me, my dear," said I, when Curper had gone, "is your want of feeling—so to put it—in connection with myself and that young lady correspondent of Curper's. You must have supposed that I was taking a good deal of interest in an unknown young woman."

"Why should I have had any feeling about it?" she answered, "I was the young woman."

"But when you heard about this, you couldn't have imagined that I knew you were the young lady in question?"

"But I knew that I was the young lady," she said, flipping a little dust from the upturned face of the Chinaman, "and how could I object to your taking an interest in mee?"

Do you know what Congestion is? Well, listen.

It is a "Collecting together" of blood in an organ and occurs during a sluggish condition of the system. To maintain health the blood must flow constantly. If congestion occurs it is dammed up and the longer it remains in this condition the surer does it undermine and destroy the organ or produce a chronic disease.

Messrs. J. M. Hunnicutt & Co., Atlanta, Ga.:

Dear Sir—I have been a victim of Chronic Rheumatism for thirty years or more, and never found anything which benefitted me till you sent me a bottle of Hunnicut's Rheumatic Cure, in August of this year. I took it as directed, and have not had a twinge of rheumatism since. I have never been able, since I first had rheumatism, to take any active exercise without suffering from it. Now nothing seems to hurt me. I regard my cure as permanent, and take pleasure in recommending your medicine to all who suffer from this dire disease.

Respectfully,

ATLANTA Ga., February 12th, 1886, Messrs. J. M. Hunnicutt & C., Atlanta, Ga.: Gentlemen: I take this opportunity of adding my testimonial to that of many others as to the curative properties of "Hunnicutt's Rheumatic Cure," for the relief and eradication of that painful disease, rheumatism. For a year I suffered from rheumatism in my right arm, and it gradually spread over my whole body. About the time I was first stricken with the disease there was in the means to that purpose. He teaches us that the intellectual endownents of scientific men are to be used as a means of obtaining certain results. I was suffering terribly and I know of certain persons who had been cured by H. R. C. I took the remedy, and now on bended knees I thank God, the Supreme Architect of the universe that I have been cured, and I also thank you, Messrs J. M.
Hunnicutt & Co., for being the instrument in his hands by which I, and as many as will take it, can be cured of rheumatism. Try Hunnicutt's Rheumatic Cure, Respectfully, Mrs. W. E. OSBOENE.

Messrs. J. M. Hunnicutt & Co., Atlanta, Ga. Gentlemen-My wife having been a great sufferen from rheumatism, the form sciatica, with severe and acute pains, such as she could not bear without shedding tears and crying. Having used three bottles of Hunnicutt's Rheumatic Cure she feels now that she is free from pain and believes that that medicine has wrought the wonderful cure. She is now able to attend to all her domestic duties. I consider your remedy the best that is made and I cheerfully recommend it.

J. C. DUNLAP,

Messrs, J. M. Hunnicutt & Co.:

Some years I had a severe attack of rheumatism and was confined to my bed for thirty days; on one Sunday morning I was on my bed helpless and with little hope of recovering, when I sent for Mr. J. M. Hunnicutt, who informed me that Hunnicutt's Rheumatic Cure would have me up and walking over my house the next day. I thought the man was crazy, and laughed at him, though I agreed to try his remedy, and did as directed. My right leg was then immovable. During the evening and night I began to feel a sense of easiness all through my system, and about 2 o'clock in the night my leg that was bad began to relax, and the sudden relief aroused me to a wide awake, when I called my wife and asked her te look at my leg. I could pull it up. I was so overjoyed I halloaed, "Hurrah for Hunnicutt." I slept nicely the balance of the night. The next moning I got out of my oed and dressed, when the children began to be so surprised at seeing me out lof bed, they came around with delight, and exclaimed: "Look at papa! I am so glad:" I walked that day all over my house. The second day I had a walk in the yard. The third day I went riding and visited my places of business, and less than one week I was moving again at my post as if nothing had happened. I have not been troubled with anything of the kind since, and can yet say, hurrah for "Hunnicutt's Rheumatic cure."

WASHINGTON, March 6 .- [Special.]-The Georgia delegation stands solid against the Lowell bankruptcy bill. There is talk of an indignation meeting in Washington to protest against the nomination of the negro Matthews, from Albany, as Chairman Willis, of the river and harbo committee, said tonight that his committee had made up its mind to conclude all hearings not later than the latter part of March. He declined to say what would be the total amount of the bill, but said that the bill was being constructed on the basis of one-fourth of the estimates submitted by the corps of engineers.

CONKLING'S CHANCE. Which May Not be Such a Blg Chance After All.

WASHINGTON, March 7 .- [Special.] -With remarkable concert come suggestions from all parts of the country that Roscoe Coukling is the man to lead the republican party out of the wilderness and back to power. These allu sions are not confined to republican newspapers. Fulsome culogies of Conkling have reently appeared in several prominent democratic journals. What the newspapers are saying is echeed and emare saying is echoed and emphasized by Conkling's friends and admirers in congress. This sudden tribute to the exsenator has been provoked by his superb management of the prosecution of the Broadway surface railway frauds. The republicans are, in fact, without any real leader in congress, or one in the party anywhere who looms as a possible Moses. They are on the lookout for such a man. This anxiety and Mr. Conkling's eminent abilities and high personal character are sufficient explanation of the present movement. Yet it is clear to those who know how the mass of the republican politicians regard Conkling that this movement to bring him back into party harness does not really signify a desire to put him in the lead. Its real which is to seem Conkling with a significant in the second control of the second co object is to secure Conkling's aid in the con ing New York election, and then to drop him.

The republicans are very apprehensive that they will lose the New York legislature. The two factions in the party in that state hold an intense animosity toward each other. Local quarrels in their own party, together with the strong democratic gains in the rural districts make many of their gerrymandered districts very insecure. The democrats, on the other hand, are reported to be and confident of victory. Since the nomination and election of Hill as governor drove out the noisy but inconsiderable mugwaump element, the party has been able to count on all e democratic strength in New York. That it has a clear majority of the votes in that ite. it is thought that Conkling's services to the state in unco vering the Broadway flauds will win him an immense popularity. With the independent vote he is remarkably strong. The insignificance of the present releaders would make him annea stronger than ever on his return to party service. Undoubtedly Mr. Conkling can be of great service to the republicans of New York, and they would be delighted to have him help then in their next campaign, but beyond that they would have little use for him. He was never popular with his own party leaders. The big ones disliked him because they were jealous of him: the little ones hated they were jealous of him: the little ones hated him because he snubbed them. In 1880 the most earnest efforts of his friends could barely most earnest efforts of his friends could barely muster a score of votes outside of his own state delegation, in the convention for his nomination for the presidency. In the senate he had less than half a dozen republican associates, and not more than two or three personal friends. He was called on whenever there was heavy work to do for the party, and always responded with ready and effective service, but it did not increase his influence with the party managers who were forever under the control of better politicians and weaker men than Conkling. His best friends in Washington are sceptical as to the friends in Washington are sceptical as to the result of this effort to again. When he was thrown out of the five years ago, he was poor. An undivided devotion to his profession since that time has enabled him to amass a competency, which is fast becoming a fortune. He was never before so independent in any true sense of the word A member of congress who knows him well said the other day:

"You will never see Roscoe Conkling a leader of the republican party again. His party sentiment grew weak before he became disgusted with the Garfield administration. He began with the Garheld administration. He began to lese faith in his party when the fraud of 1876 was perpetrated, and he almost rose to the height of denouncing it from his place in the senate. I have reason to believe that Mr. Conkling regards that as the lost opportunity of his life. In the last campaign he did not vote at all, but his influence was silently thrown for Cleveland. He has no future in the republican party beyond the temporary prominence of serving it in a great porary prominence of serving it in a great emergency, and that privilege, I am confident, emergency, and that privilege, I am confident, he will respectfully decline."

The Fruit Not so Badly Hurt as Reported Effect of the Freeze.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., March 6 .- At the au mual meeting of the National Editorial associa tion held at Cincinnati, Pebruary 33d, 24th and 33th, a delegation composed or representative journalists from eighteen states, was appointed to visit Florida, on the invitation of citizens there, and eport to the association their conclusions as to effect of the recent freeze on the oran industry. Among the delegates were Preside Herbert, of Minnesota; Hon. Edwin Hurlbut, Wisconsin: Hon. A. B. Norton, of Texos: Judge Jo

Herbert, of Minnesota; Hon. Edwin Hurlbut, of Wisconsin; Hon. A. B. Norton, of Texos; Judge Joseph H. Turner, of Missouri, and a number of prominent journalists. The party returned to Jacksonville last night and today adopted and signed an official report, in which they say:

Our observations lead to the conclusion that the reports so unfavorable to the orange industry which followed the frost, were largely which followed the frost, were largely which followed the foreament orange growers themselves, arising from insufficient information. The few weeks which have since clapsed, have changed the face of nature and lifted the cloud from Florida's great industry. It seems to be the almost universal opinion among, orange growers that the freeze will really be a benefit to the people of Florida in showing that the orange trees are able to withstand more severe frosts and colder weather than has heretofore been considered possible, and in encouraging the discovery or invention of more efficient methods of protection and preservation of crops. This report is signed by twenty-seven delegates, representing eighteen states from Massachusetts to Colorado.

AGITATED LABOR.

A GENERAL STRIKE ON THE GOULD.

The Esights of Labor Order the Workmen of the Texas Pacific to Quit Work Until Their De-mands are Acceded to The Studebaker Men Also Out-Other Strikes, ST. LOUIS, MARCH 6 .- All the Knights of Labor at this place, to the number of 490, em-ployed on Gould system of railroads, struck this morning, and it is understood that all Knights upon the entire system will follow their example before this evening. Advices from Sedalia, Mo., where the headquarters of the knights of Labor of the district assembly to the number of one hundred are located, are to the effect that 700 of Gould employes at that place, have gove out and this will confirm the expecthat the strike would become general. tation The officials of the Missouri Pacific railroad, are very reticent and positively decline to make any statement other than that they do not anticipate the possibility of supplying the places of the strikers. Master Workman McGeary. of this district assembly refuses to state the direct cause of the difficulty and is as reticent as the railroad officials.

The order calling upon the Knights of Labor to strike on the Gould Southwestern system applies to shop men entirely and does not effect in the least the train men. All trains to and from this city are running on time, and no serious trouble is anticipated.

The running force of the Gould system; in cluding shipmen, trackmen and trainmen, 13,000. Of these 9,000 are claimed to be Knights of Labor, but up to this afternoon only those employed in the machine shops had struck. It is estimated that at the present time from 2,500 to 3,000 men have gone out, but it is thought probable that if the managers do not decide promptly to the demands of the strikers all remaining Knights on the system will be ordered out. The cause of the strike has been very difficult to get at, but the follo ing statement is as comprehensive and perhaps as accurate as has vet been made : On the 15th of last month, District Assembly 101, of Knights of Labor, held a general business convention at Marshall, Texas. Among the delegates to that meeting was M. C. Hall, foreman of wood workers of the Texas Pacific car shops at Marshall. He had secured, it is alleged, leave of absence for the purpose of attending the convention from his immediate superior, J. A. Cosby, master car builder. This permission, it is said, was witnessed by J. J. McGeary, of St. Louis, and John Thornborn, of DeSoto, Mo., visiting Knights. The convention, with Hall as a delegate, sat four days, and on the 19th adjourned. At noon for the day, Hall resumed his work as usual for that day Hall resumed his work as usual. On quitting his duty in the evening he received a note from from Cosby stating his services were no longer required, and assigning as cause of his discharge that he had been absent from his business without leave. The local grievance committee of the leave. The local grievance committee of the Knights at once considered the matter. His rereglected. A strike was then ordered by this local committee and upon refusal of the men to obey the order, a meeting of the executive board of Knights was called. The executive board ratified the action of the local committee and issued a general order name. committee and issued a general order upon which the men quit work at Ft. Worth, Mar-shall and Dallas. This action of the executive board, it is claimed, was not so much in the interest of the man Hall as a strike for the principle involved.

One year ago there was an agreement made between the Knights and managers of the system that no man should be discharged without due notice and investigation. This contract, the Knights contend, has been violated in this instance of Hall's discharge. The Texas Pa-cific railway is one of the five roads in the state-of Missouri, Kansas, Texas, Arkansas and Louisiana, which comprises the south-and Louisiana, which comprises the south-western Gould system.

The Knights of Labor employed in these five roads are under the immediate direction of district assembly 101. When the local strike in Texas failed of the desired result, the executive board of Knights of Labor of this . southwestern system in session at Marshall, and in communication with Reeiver Brown and other officers of the Texas Pacific railroad since March 1, when the first lot of men walked out, asked an adjustment of the trouble by the reinstatement of Hall and some others who were subsequently dis-charged. With this request the board gave notice that refusal to comply would be follow-ed by a strike on the Gould system. The railroad has failed to do as directed, and today the executive board gave word for a general strike of shepmen.

THE SITUATION AT SEDALIA. Sedalia, Mo., March 6.—An order for a general strike on the Gould southwestern system reached this place this morning at 10:30 o'clock and every man in the Missouri Pacific shops put up their tools and walked out. The employes there num-bered about 700. The men are determined to support to the end the demands of the Texas strikers. Everything is quiet and no trouble of a violent nature is anticipated. Trains are running on time and no effort has been made to interfere with them except to carry out the boyeott instituted against the Texas Pa-cific cars, which are side-tracked as soon as they reach this place.

CONVICT LABOR.

Threat of Free Miners to Burn out the Convicts. Louisville, Ky., March 6.—Governor Knott sent special message to legislature at Frankfort this morning stating that he has just received a notification from Louis Craig, state inspector in charge of convict camps at Greenwood. Pulaski county, telling of a desperate state of affairs in the mines. Convicts are worked there, and yesterday 200 orderly armed free miners in a body informed the inspector and Mr. Bambridge, one of the convict lessees that they would be given two hours to take the convicts and property away, as they jintended to burn all the buildings in the camp. They said they did not desire to resort to violence but would do jo if necessary. The inspector asked for two days, and his request was granted. The inspector telegraphed the governor to either send troops at once or order the removal of the convicts before Sunday noon, as the free miners were desperate and determined. At 2 o'clock the governor ordered five companies of state militia to Greenwood mines to protect the convicts and state property.

Louisville, Ky., March 6.—Companies A. C., D and E of the state Guards left tonight to pritect the miners and convicts afferenwood, Ky. Governor Knott this afternoon issued a proclamation commanding the people of Pulaski county to keep the peace and ordering the mob to disperse. Two hundred convicts are employed in the mine. No trouble is expected before tomorrow, when the free miners swear they will destroy the convict camp. The convicts are at present guarded in their quarters. The Greenwood mines are ix miles from the Cincinnati Southern road, and are owned by capitalists in London, Cincinnati, Lexington and Danville. Louisville, Ky., March 6. - Governor

Supplying Their Places with Negroes

GALVESTON, March 6 .- The Knights of Labor at the Gulf, colorado, and Santa Fe freight depot who refused to handle Mallory freight were displaced this morning by colored laborers. At the Missiouri Pacific yard very few Knights observe the boycott and none were discharged. Both companies have a number of colored men selected with a vite of real-gaing Knights as fast as the left. companies have a number of colored men selected with a view of replacing Knights as fast as the latter drop out. Such changes will be permanent. Rumors of an impending general strike of the Knights throughout Texas are current here and elsewhere in the state. Indications point to an understanding on the part of Knights to guit work generally on Monday on all the railroads carrying Mallory freight. There is considerable dissatisfaction in the ranks of the local Knights, especially those employed in the great compress establishments. Master Workman Golden of this [78th] district assembly Knights of Labor has been impeached for violation of his pledge to abstain from liquor and is superseded today by William A. Farmer of Minola, Tex.

Studebaker's Men Strike.

CHICAGO. March 6.—One thousand men em ployed by the Studebaker Bro's., wagon manufacturers at South Bend, struck today. H. E. Stude baker said to an associated press reporter tonight:

"When our men discharge themselves, they do what we never did by them. Our works have been in operation for thirty four years, and have never shut down except of legal holidays and for repairs. We have never asked our men to work half inne, always having believed it better policy to pay a collar and a half for a day's work than to pay a dollar for a half day's work. We don't anticipate any arrows trouble. A few of the men have decided to demand an advance of twenty-five per cent, and have sacceeded in Inducing those inclined to be dissaised to go out with them."

The employes sent a committee to the firm on Monday last making the demand, but promised to review the situation personally with their superstructure, and entergy to adjust matters satisfactorily.

Heated Strikers.

New York, March 6.—Late this afternoon the New York steam heating company addressed a letter to the police commissioners, notifying them that the company's property and the lives of its employes were in danger from the violence of the striking firemen, and that the city would be held responsible for all damage done. Folice Commissioner French at once sent to the office of the company and assured the office of the company to cart coal tomorrow if necessary. This evening carts are working to pier three, protected each by two officers. There are knots of men along the streets but no concourse or disturbance.

Retail Merchants Using the Boycott. ST. Louis, March 6. Bourse. Paris, March 6 .- The name of the man who red off his revolver and threw a bottle on the floor of the Paris bourse yesterday is not Petrovich, a t first reported, but Gallo. He is a native of Brit tany. He has been out of employment for some time. Formerly he was chemist's assistant and used to be well known in certain parts of the city used to be well known in certain parts of the city as a frequent speaker at public meetings. In 1579 Gallo was convicted of coining and circulating counterfeit money. The police searched his lodgings today and found a quantity of materials for the manufacture of explosives and bombs, a number of finished bombs and a mass of nitro-glycerine. The authorities are now convinced that callo belongs to an organization of conspirators, and are endeavoring to find his accomplices. Gallo maintains a determined air and says he is sure he will have an imitator.

Cleveland--Fires Elsewhere. CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 6.—At 2 o'clock this CLEVELAND, Ohio, March 6.—At 2° clock this morning fire broke out in the extensive out meal mills of Ferdenand Schumacher at Akron, O. The mills are the largest in the country and consist of several immense buildings. The fire was discovered in a seven story wooden structure. The flames spread with alarming rapidity and were soon beyond control. The building first attacked was soon entirely enveloped. The fire next communicated to the dry house, which was also destroyed. A twenty thousand bushel elevator was next eaten up, and at last reports another immense mill was threatened with destruction. The Universalist charch across the street and the freight houses of the Cleveland, Akron and Columbus railroad were on fire. The Windsor hotel, also owned by Mr. schumacher, and valued at $70,000, is threatened. The loss will reach $300,000.

The fire in Schumacher's mills has been subdued. Mill and dry house, an elevator containing 150,000 bushels wheat, and depot of New York, Fennsylvania and Ohio railroad, with contents, were burned. Loss will not fall much short of one million dellars. Schumacher carried $150,000 insurance.

LYNCH LAW IN JERSEY

A HORRIBLE CRIME AND SWIFT

Young White Lady Knocked on the Head and Brutally Assaulted by a Seventy-Year-Old Negro, Who is Afterwards Taken by a Mob and Hanged-Other Criminal News.

EATONTOWN, N. J., March 6.-[Special.]-Sam Johnson, a negro aged sixty-five, was lynched last night for assaulting and outraging a young white girl, the nineteen-year-old daughter of Henry Herbert. The community is in a terrible state of excitement. The preponderance of opinion is with the lynchers and few persons really condemu them for the negro's crime was one of the worst and most fiendish ever perpetrated in a civilized community. The young woman was returning home last evening about dusk. At Maps mills, about a mile out of town, she met a negro, who struck her on the head with an axe. He then BRUTALLY OUTRAGED HER and left her unconscious and nearly dead. She was discovered half an hour later and taken to her home near by. The neighborhood was soon aroused, and every able-bodied man in the vicinity turned out to hunt for the villain. He ran to the woods and from thence ventured to go to his frome in South Eatontown, where he has a wife and four grown children. Two active and strong young men went to his home about half-past 9 last night and, after a severe struggle, bound the negro and proceeded to the town jail in Eatontown. The jail was then visited by the father and the brother of the girl, who requested permission to shoot the negro, but this was not allowed.

Impromptu indignation meetings were held, and the life of the darky was called for vehemently. An excited mob from each town started for the Eatontown jail. The mobs met at the jail and, breaking open the doors, rushed in and began clubbing the darky unmercifully. His cries for mercy and life were heard half a mile off. Not content with clubbing him until his head was horribly bruised, they tied a rope round his neck and, running it through the iron grating over the jail door,

THEY QUICKLY ENDED HIS EXISTENCE and left him swinging. Pending the coroner arrival men, women and children gathered about the black corpse in the sunlight.

Miss Herbert is in a critical condition and her life almost despaired of. She is a most estimable young woman and liked by everyone. No sympathy whaterer is expressed for the black brute. No clew to the lynchers as yet has been found, but more developments may be expected soon, as the detectives are on the spot and are searching for evidence which will ead to the identification of the lynchers.

Johnson was about 70 years old. He was formerly jockey and got his nick name "Mingo" from having ridden a horse of that name He has lived here many years and was well known to his victim. She is a slight, delicate woman of 19. She had no fear when she met Johnson as she knew him so well, but he knecked her down, choked and outraged her. He was known to be violent and had been shot while in the act of committing a robbery, at had not been suspected of the crime which cost his life. Although there have been few imilar crimes committed within five years whose perpetrators were not detected, the ommunity is rejoiced over the swift retribution that has reached him, and everybody is profoundly ignorant who the avengers were shoots a Marshal and Wounds Two Specta-

KINGSTON, Texas, March 6.—At about noon yesterday W.B. Howard, editor of the Hunt County Chronicle, shot City Marshal A. R. Russell. Howard fired both barrels of a shotgun and stray shots struck a spectator named Overhalt and a boy named Kirkpatrick. Howard mamediately fied on horseback and was pursued half an hour later by the sheriff. Russell, Overhalt and Kirkpatrick are all fatally wounded. Howard was an eccentric young editor. He bitterly assaulted the saloon keepers in his paper. He also charged Marshal Russell and other officers with being gamblers, and otherwise assaulted Russell's character. Owing to this Russell and a couple of saloon keepers visited Howard's office a few days are and chastised him. Smarring under the assault Howard threatened to attack Russell on sight, and several times both men came near drawing weapons. Yesterday, when Russell was returning from the postoffice. Howard suddenly emerged from his office and fired both barrels of his gun at Russell's back. Russell and Overhalt are both at the point of death. Many citizens defend Howard's action, saying that he was high strung and was driven to desperation by the saloon keepers and their friends.

MURDER NEAR MILLEN.

Negro Gamblers Fall Out With Fatal Re-

MILLEN, Ga., March 6 .- [Special.] - This afternoon a cowardly and brutal murder was committed just ontside of the incorporated limits of Millen. Today a party of negroes came in town for their Sunday supply of whis-ky and on their way home stopped in a swamp to play cards. After gambling some time the party was about to continue the journey homeward when one George Mulligan asked Frank Harris for five cents. Harris said: "I have no five cents." Mulligan then cursed Harris for a liar and rdered Harris not to return it, which Harris ordered Harris not to return it, which Harris did, and turned to walk out of the swamp, when Mulligan fired, killing him instantly. The ball struck the back of the head bursting his brains out. Mulligan made his escape, but was afterwards overtaken a few miles from town by our marshal and is now in jail.

Mulligan is the coolest murderer ever seem. He langbs at his crime. The negroes are excited and may attempt to take Mulligan from jail and thus end one of this community black gamblers whose table is the cold earth in the lonely swamps about Millen.

SUPPOSED SUICIDE.

An Old Soldier in Augusta Found Dead in His Room.

AUGUSTA, Ga., March 6.—[Special.]—John Hall, an old and paralyzed confederate soldier, was found dead in his bed at his room, 1223 Ellis street, this morning by his attendant. An empty phial, which had contained laudanum, and a small bottle of chloroform, was found in his room, and he is suppressed to have num, and a small bottle of chloroform, was found in his room, and he is supposed to have suicided. Mr. Hall has figured conspicuously in Augusta. Of late he had been domiciled at the Richmond county poor-house, and left that institution and loudly sounded his complaints on the streets. The afternoon paper took up his cause, and a war of words was indulged in concerning him by the paper and County Judge Eve, who has charge of the procedure. County Judge Eve, who has charge of the poor-house. It was declared that Hall's raiment had been better than other inmates, and that he was a confirmed opium eater, which rendered his nature irritable and making it impossible to please him. It is now thought that the publicity given his case worked upon his mind. That, in conjunction with his constant pain and suffering, caused by wounds received in battle, he ended his misery and mortification in death. It is more chartable, however, in the absence of absolute proof of self destruction to urge that his death was from natural causes. A SHOCKING ACCIDENT.

An Augusta Lady's Clothes Takes Fire and She is Badly Burned.

AUGUSTA, Ga, March 6.—[Special.]—At her residence 1145 Hopkins street, Mrs. Millie A. Hutchins, wife of Eugene Hutchins, of the Augusta and Summerville railroad, was horribly ned from hip to heel, from the effects of hich she will not recover, Feeling badly during the day, Mrs. Hutchins threw a blanket on a rug on the floor in front of the fire place and lay with her back to the fire for a rest before beginning the preparation of the noon meal. There was no one ration of the noon meal. There was no one in the house at the time excepting her 8 year-old son and an infant. After a few minutes Mrs. Hutchins felt uncomfortably warm, and arose from her temporary couch to find her clothes in a blaze. She appealed to her little son to throw a bucketful of water at hand on her burning clothes, but the little fellow proved too weak to handle the pail. Maddened with pain the frightened lady rushed into her rear rand where her frantic cries attracted the rear yard where her frantic cries attracted the attention of neighbors, who quickly fan to her assistance and outed the flames. Mrs. Hutch-ins is terribly burned from the hips down, and her physicians doubt her recovery. The neighborhood was thoroughly alarmed by the screams of the burning lady, which could be heard blocks away.

A BIG RESERVOIR TO BE CON STRUCTED IN EAST MACON

The Historic Site of Fort Hawkins to be Utilized Growing Gas Works-Personal and Social Growing Phi Delta Theatea Social Club-Dots and Dashes-News Notes, Etc.

MACON Ga., March 6 .- [Special.] - For some time the gas and water company have been casting about for some means of increasing the water reserve in the city. The great reservoir on Windsor Hill is hardly large enough to supply the needs of our growing city.

Wilburn Hill, two miles up the river, is the highest point in the vicinity, but it is too far away. Next to it comes Tait Hawkins Hill, East Macon, that is two feet higher than Windsor Hill, and there the company have deeided to locate the new reservoir.

The purchase of an acre lot, making three all, from W. H. Jones today, com pleted the negotiations. The purchase was made through Mr. Hodges, of the firm of Sherrill & Hodges, and there is no longer any doubt of the location of the reservoir. The plans will probably be made public in a few days. So far nothing definite has been decided upon, but the reservoir is to be built, and will be supplied with water from Tuft's spring, three miles away. The main will be laid across the river through the city bridge, and when all is complete the Macon water system will be well nigh perfect.

The prohibitionists here have labored under many disadvantages, and many things have occurred to unite and solidify the opponents of prohibition. The country people of our county are haughty and independent, and nothing has aroused them so much as the bringing in of outside men to tell them how to vote. So when the Rev. Mr. Norcross, Mr. Throwery Dr. Gibson and others came among and made speaches, powerful though the Dr. Gibson and others came among us and made speaches, powerful though they were, and excellent men though they are, their coming only seemed to make the people more determined to vote against prohibition. The woods about Dawsonville were full of bleshedet which. blockaded whisky. The grand jurymen left their room to try it; petted jurors were drunk in their seats, the sheriff was drinking all the time; few true bills were returned, and it was almost impossible to find a man guilty.

Now say the anti-prohibitionists here: Was anything like that ever seen in Gainesville? Which is best for the morals of our people, barrooms where it can be sold according to law, and guarded by police, or this wholesale drunkenness and violation of law? We will not admit, as many anti-prohibitionists do, that the morality is all on the prohibition side. And the same news comes from Habersham county. The writer heard Solicitor General Erwin say recently that there was more whis-ky made, sold and consumed in that county now than ever before.

THE LATE DR. WILKES.

His Funeral in Gainesville Largely Attended.

GAINESVILLE, March 5.—[Special.]—The funeral of Dr. W. C. Wilkes was largely attended. Many could not get seats in the church. The funeral sermon was preached by Dr. McDonald, of the Second Baptist burch, Atlanta. He was assisted by several of the local ministers.

The pall-bearers were, R. Palmour, C. W. DuPre, J. T. Telford, F. M. Johnson, Dr. R. B. Adair and W. D. Whelchel. All the were closed and business was suspended dur-ing the funeral exercises.

Dr. Wilkes was universally liked, and was widely known in connection with the Georgia Baptist seminary for young ladies, an institution which he founded and has watched and developed with unceasing care and mark ed ability.

It is said that for the present Rev. A. A

The McDuffie Oak.

From the Thompson, Ga., Journal. The McDuffie oak furnished a theme for John Simons, that proved very interesting to the writer not long since. It is thirty-three feet in circumference, three feet from the ground, and may be a thousand years old. The Indians rested under its shade before the "pale face" came to haunt them. Under its wide-spreading branches was many a furious green corn dance. But what gives it most interest is the history from which it takes its name. It is in the yard where the McDuffie family once resided, and where George McDuffie, once governor of South Carolina, was born. Scions of that family and others, who resided at the same home later, came on pilgrimages to this tree to do it reverence. Let these descendants of noble sires become sufficiently famous, and John Simmons may make a fortune by converting the "McDuffie oak" into relics, The McDuffie oak furnished a theme fo

MERRITT MURDERED.

JOHN COFFEE KILLS DE PUTY MAR-SHALL JOHN MERRITT.

Hall County Boiling Over With Excitement, Caused by the Shooting and Instantly Killing of One of Her Most Valuable Citizens at the Hands of John Coffee-Details of the Crime

LULA, Ga., March 6 .- [Special.]-Tonight bout 8 o'clock Lula was thrown into a sea of excitement caused by the killing of United States Marshal John Merritt, of Gainesville, at the hands of John Coffee, a prominent citizen of this place. It seems that Merritt, Deputy Marshal F. F. Cape and Joel Coffee and several others were sitting in Logan's restaurant conversing socially, when John Coffee came in and after standing with the crowd a few moments taking part in the conversation, said: "Merritt, let me see you privately a moment."

Coffee walked out of the front door of the restaurant followed by Merritt and stopped on the corner, which is only a few steps from the entrance of the restaurant. The other members of the party remained in the restaurant and continued the conversation. A few moments after Coffee and Merritt had passed out of the door four or FIVE PISTOL SHOTS were heard fired in quick succession. The reports of the pistol came from the street near the entrance of the building. The men rushed out and found John Merritt laying on the ground near the corner gasping for breath. The night was dark and no one could be seen near the dying man. He was picked up and carried into · restaurant when he drew one breath and d. Merritt died without uttering a word ony kind. In fact he was practically dead ... hen the men

A hasty examination of the wounds showed that Merritt was shot in several places, one ball entering his breast near the left nipple and probably passing through his heart. Cape says that while Merritt and Coffee were in the restaurant they were conversing pleasantly and seemed to be perfectly friendly. Soon after the killing, and when the body was lying on the floor of the restaurant with a stream blood oozing out of the wound in the dead man's breast, Cape called upon the crowd to go with him and arrest the man who HAD KILLED MERRITT. He said that he knew who had committed the murder, and intimated that John Coffee was the man. Joel Coffee, a brother of John, was in the crowd standing about the remains, when Cape called for volunteers.

Some member of the party was heard to respond to Cape's call by saying that he had better not bother himself about the matter, as he did not know who had done the killing. No one offered to go, and all seemed to discourage the idea of pursuing the suspected party. Cape, seeing that he could get no assistance there, took the down train for Gainesville. News of the killing had preceded him and when he reached the Gainesville depot fully half of the residents of the town were there to hear the particulars of the murder As Merritt was quite popular in Gainesville, where he had passed most of his life, and was highly regarded by all who knew him, it was an easy matter to get up a party

CAPE'S STATEMENT OF THE KILLING. GAINSVILLE, March 6 .- [Special.] -- Fron Deputy Marshal F. F. Cape your corresponden has just obtained the following account of the has just obtained the following account of the killing of D eputy Marshall John Merritt, which occurred at Lula to-night: "Three of us," said Cape, "Merritt, Osburn and I, left Gainesville yesterday morning on a raid into Banks county. We left the cars at Lula where we were joined by Deputy Collector Strong. After spending the whole of yesterday in a fruitless search and lying out all night, we reached Lula this evening between sundown and dark, tired and sleepy, and intended to and dark, tired and sleepy, and intended to get aboard the down passenger at 9 o'clock for Gainesville. While awaiting the arrival of the train we went into what is known as Logan's restaurant, a house situated on the left of the railroad from here, almost directly Merritt was seated in front of the fire, I was on his right, and Jeel Coffee and Osborn at his left. He was entertaining the party by propounding questions from Walter Taylor's riddle book, and we were amusing ourselves trying to guess the answers to the questions. In the midst of this John Coffee came in and stood midst of this John Coffee came in and stood between Merritt, who was still reading, and the fire, and spoke to me very pleasantly. After a moment he approached Merritt, touched him on the arm, nodded to him, gave him to understand that he wished to speak to him privately and went out. followed by Merritt. As they passed out the door Logan saw them and remarked jokingly: 'Yes, by G—d, you are fixing to give somebody away now.' A moment after he made this remark five pistol shots were heard in quick succession, and some one outside said "Oh!" three times. I immediately sprang to my feet and rushed out, asking as I did so: 'What is the matter?' Logan replied: "SOMEBODY'S KILLED, I think,' and seized his lantern. We then went out together, followed by the others, and around the corner, about eight or ten feet, we saw Merritt lying on his face against the house. Logan called for water and dashed some on him and turned him over. He was still alive, but

We made a hasty examination and found only one wound located near the heart. Soon after I came away on the train, leaving him there surrounded by loving friends. As brave a man and as true a friend as ever breathed. Why John Coffee should have killed him I do not know. Coffee was not drinking, and not a word was passed in anger so far as any of us could hear. It was a cruel, cold-blooded murder. Commissioner Gaston, Deputy Collector Ware, H. T. Martin and Joe Bell are preparing to go to Lula now on horseback. Marshal Nelms has been telegraphed and urged to send a detective and, if possible, bloodhounds,

A Fatal Accident on the East and Wes

Railroad. CARTERSVILLE, March 6.-[Special.]-The east bound local freight of the East and West railroad, broke through the Whitehead trestle three miles below Taylorsville, yesterday morning. The whole crew of the train were on the engine except a nego named Will Smith, and none were killed but Smith, though all were more or less seriously bruised or scalded. Conductor Vandivere was teribly scalded on the head, face, hands and legs. Frank Stephens, fireman, was painfully scaled and bruised. Henry Hudson, engineer, escaped by a miracle with a few slight injuries.

Will Smith, the man killed, was sitting on a flat car in front of the engine, which was running backward. The drawbar of the engine passed through his body, completely disembowed him, and his head was so crushed and man that it bears no resemblance to that member. The trestle is thirty feet high, and the engine was almost demolished by the fall. Ten flat cars are piled on it, and as all the men were on the engine except the unfortunate negro, it is a nder how they escaped so lightly.

News of the accident reached here before the morning passenger train left, and when it went Dr. Lindsay Johnson and friends of the wounded men went out to care for them and bring then Conductor Vandivere was brought in a on nome. Conductor value of the conductor was considered a solution of the train he was completely enveloped in flour and bandages, and presented a piteous spectacle. He is now at home, receiving all possible care and athis fearful injuries.

Colonel D. B. Cade, of Elbert county, writes Colonel D. B. Cade, of Elbert county, writes thus to the Elberton Gazette:

A negro on my place in Lincoln county was bitten by a mad dog on January 15th last, went mad on Friday, the 19th of this mouth, and after the most horrible suffering, died on Sunday, the 21st. Dr. James E. Bell pronounced it a. clear case of hydrophobia. Now, Mr. Editor, I think if you had seen the case, when it took three strong negro men to hold a ten year old boy in bed, you would use the influence of your paper to have a dog tax. And let said tax go to the public school fund. What it takes to feed the dogs of the county would raise meat enough to feed half the county, etc.

Commenting on this, the Gazette proceeds to say:

say:
We also hear of a mad dog biting a man in the neighborhood of Ruckersville on Sunday evening, the day that a mad dog passed through Elberton, and we hear of them in various parts of the country. The probability is that these dogs have come in contact with many other dogs in traveling through the country, and we may expect to have numerous mad dogs in a short time. It will soon become dangerous for people to go upon the highways, and when they do they will be in constant dread of coming in contact with one of these rabid dogs, more dangerous than the wild beasts in the ways, and when they do they will be in constant dread of coming in contact with one of these rabid dogs, more dangerous than the wild beasts in the jungles of Africa. Captain Cade is in favor of a dog tax, and we believe that three fourths of the white people of the state are in favor of it. As he tuggests, they are a very expensive luxury to those who feed them, but a large proportion of the dogs in the country belong to negroes who rarely ever feed them, and they are compelled toget their living by foraging upon their neighbors—killing sheep, hogs, etc. The half-starved dogs will eat almost anything, no matter how filthy and unwholesome, and are usually the dogs that go mad. Something must be done to abate this nuisance, and if the legislature still refuses to give relief, the people ought to take the matter in their own hands, and let every neighborhood make it a rule to kill every dog that is seen running at large. If this was dune and faithfully keet up for a few years, there would be but little danger from dogs of any kind, and we think the condition of things at present fully justifies such a carrse.

THE DOUBLE MURDER.

FRANK HUMPHRIES MAKES A FULL STATEMENT.

He Stoutly Denies the Accusition Charging Him With the Hurders—The Interview in the Cell Opinions as to the Verdiet—The Burial of the Girls—A Sad Occasion.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., March 6 .- [Special.] -The horrible murder of the two women, Carrie Raines and Ella Humphries, on George Vining's plantation has been the topic of conversation among the people of Milledgeville today. There have been no developments further than those telegraphed yesterday. Frank Humphries, the man accused of the murders, is safely lodged in jail and looks haggard and dejected. THE PRISONER TALKS.

To your correspondent he said: "I went out yesterday, intending to shoot ome birds, and I thought I would go as far as Mr. Gile's house, five miles above me. I have not been working my lands, but have have not been working my lands, but have rented them out, and I spend a good deal of my time hunting in the woods. The day looked unpromising, and I changed my original purpose, and that is wherein I made a mistake, for I did not tell my wife, who is in poor health, that I intended to bring Miss Carrie hone with me. But I wanted to have Carrie home with me. But I wanted to have some fun, and so I went to my Brother Elisha's home and took dinner. It was just four o'clock when I succeeded in persuading Miss Carrieto go home with me, but I heard her say that she would not go with me unless Ella, my niece, as well as her own, would accompany us, for she remarked that "FRANK IS DRINKING," meaning myself. Well, we set out to walk a distance of four miles to my home, my dogs were trotting along ahead of me, and we had gone two miles and a half, and were passing through the pine thicket where there is lots of Bermuda grass growing, when I stopped to tie I heard some little and just got a glimpse wit : double-barrelled of four men, two in organs, and two make rear, one having a big tol and the outer a glittering bowiekurfe. I had on stort overcoats and high-top as, and were masked with calico doughfaces.

I just took all that in at a glance, as I was struck senselless with something that felt soft like an eelskin filled with sand. A I fell I grabbed my gun and fired both barrels at one of the assas-sins, and as I struggled along on the ground' trying to reload, I swooned away and knew no more until about two o'clock wils horating when the warm rain pattering in my face awoke me and I started off, dazed and be-wildered, taking the opposite direction to the way that led to my canes. no more until about two o'clock this morning the way that home. At the line fence, two hundred yards away I found out my mistake, and then I set out for home, where I arrived just at dawn with my clothing covered with blood and dirt. My wife came ruuning to meet me and hugged and kissed me as she always does. I had to cry a little, for the full weight of the terrible night's experience overwhelmed me. I changed my clothes and wrote a note to my brother telling him of how I had been assaulted, and that I did not know what had become of MISSES CARRIE AND ELLA.

"Then I got breakfast and went up that way, and, oh, my God! I found them murdered."

The unfortunate man broke down, and your reporter put question after question to him, but no new facts were elicited.

Sheriff Ennis was interviewed, and he said Sheriff Ennis was interviewed, and he said that he made a diligent search for the clothing which the man wore on the fatal night, but could not find it. The shoes were concealed behind a pile of rags.

It was avery discreet act in the sheriff to get him away from the scene of the tragedy and lodge him safely in jail, for outraged justice demanded the blood of the perpetrator of this ghastly and fiendish crime.

this ghastly and fiendish crime OPINION AS TO THE VERDICT.

There is a general opinion that the verdict of the coroner's jury in charging Humphries with the murder is correct. His statement is disbelieved for many reasons, chief of which is that there is no evidence whatever to substantiate his whatever to substantiate his story of the masked men. It is thought strange that, if innocent, he should have so carefully concealed his bloody clothes. The younger girl was undoubtedly outraged, and the torn condition of her garments shows that she made a brave resistance. It is believed that the elder one was murdered first for the purpose of preventing assistance while the murderer attacked the younger. If Humphies is inno-cent, it seems strange that he should have been allowed to escape death, while the two women with him were so brutally murdered The death of Humphries would have made the murderers safer from exposure. For this reason they would not have left him alive after having killed the two girls.

This and many other things point to Humphries as the murderer.

The EURIAL OF THE GIRLS.

The burial of the two victims was a sad ceremony. The friends of the two girls assembled in numbers, and silently followed them to the grave. The face of the elder of the two Carrie Raines, was horribly disfigured the fatal bullet having passed through the skull. The neck of the younger victim, Ella Humphries, was severed from ear and ear. The wounds were covered as far as possible, The wounds were covered as far as possible, and the faces of the two appeared ghastly and unnatural from the blood stained wounds they

The advocates of prohibition are confident, and there is little doubt but that Laurens would follow her sisters.

That amount of work gives them plenty to live on the remainder of the time, which is all they care for, as they cannot spend their money for whisky."

AN ARTIST'S HOME.

The Franklin House-Melting Up Lead Pipes to Fight Yankees With,

From the Athens, Ga., Banner. On Prince avenue, near its upper end, some distance back from the street, and amid a grove of beautiful native and ornamental trees and in a wilderness of choice shrubbery, sits one of the queerest shaped houses that the eye ever rests upon. It is built somewhat after the style of a Swiss cottage, only more so, and while it looks queer and unusual, at the same time there is a rustic beauty about the place, and such an evident display of taste and refinement, that one never wearies of looking at it. Although the house is apparently a cottage being built on that order is ently a cottage, being built on that cois one of the costliest and best con and arranged residences in our ci house was designed by the mother Mary Franklin, the artist, and cost scomplete. The timbers in it are all complete. The timbers in it are all of heart pine and immense size, and everything about the house of the very best. The walls were first varnished, then painted and varished again, and are as fresh today as if from the painter's brush. The entire is foor can be thrown into one room. Good Luck Hands.

From the Albany, Ga., News.
It was not a flesh hand, artificial hand, nor hand of "keerds," but one of these invincible, unfailing, ever-winning, good-luck hands that play so prominent a part in voodoism and in which lies the secret power which negroes think, or can be made to think, is possessed by those great bug-bears known among that superstitious race as conjurers. One darky, claiming to be a medium through which these "hands" can be obtained, sold one of them to another darky down about Camilla, yesterday other darky down about Camina, or morning, for five dollars. The "hand" consisted nor a small piece of shell from a crab or lobster, and on the concave side of this was faster, and on the concave side of this was faster. f some kind, which had been carefully "salted down." The instructions of the conjurer were that the mysterious and all powerful fles's must be salted every Monday morning. With must be saited every monday morning. With this "hand" about his person the purchaser would be followed by good luck all the time, always winning, never losing, finding that which others lost, etc., etc. The benighted negro was forbidden to look at his "hand" until after it had been in his possession for twenty-four hours. This precautionary requirement was doubtless made by the con "urer in order was doubtless made by the confurer in order was doubtless made by the confurer in order that he might have ample time to get out of the way. The conjurer received the five dollars for the "hand," and took the train coming toward Albany yeaterday morning. He hadn't been here long, however, before his victim turned up. The latter had evidently looked at his "hand" and been convinced by some one that he had been swindled out of five dollars, and he had been swindled out of five dollars, and he had been swindled out of five dollars, and he put out after the train that brought the swindler to Albany. He made good time, and arrived in the city in less than two hours after the train. Indications for Atlanta and Georgia: Fair weather, stationary temperature. For the South Atlantic States: North and west winds: stationary temperature; fair weather, followed by occasional local rains. East Gulf States: North and east winds; stationary temperature; cloudy and rainy weather.

THE iron manufacturers of the country had representatives before the ways and means committee in Washington arguing against the Morrison bill. They prefer free trade rather than the tariff proposed in the LYNCHINGS are not of frequent occurrence in New Jersey, but when such a revolting crime is committed as that narrated in our dispatches, justice, in the regular methods. seems too slow even for the average Jersey-

THE murder of Deputy Marshal Merritt. in Lula last night, adds another terrible story to the chapter of crime with which the past week has been particulatly marked. The Baldwin county double murder is one of the most revolting in the criminal records of the state. The murderer of Merritt has escaped, and there is only circumstantial evidence against the prisoner charged with the murder of the two women. This, however, is exceedingly strong, and points to him as the guilty party. Justice should not rest until the offenders in such crimes are captured and punished to the extent of the

THE epidemic of disease which has necessi tated the removal of the United States prison ers confined in the Fulton-county jail, again suggests the importance of a change in the present method of dealing with these prisoners. These hardy mountaineers and farmers are taken from their country homes and thrust into the narrow limits of the jail, and ontract disease from their of One of the prisoners says that these mer should be given outdoor work. It certainly seems better than bringing them here to change the free and roving life of the coun try for an existence between the narrow walls of a cell, in which they sicken and some times die from mere confinement.

OUR advertisements run up this morning to nearly sixty columns, touching the high water mark for this season. They crowd more heavily apon our reading space than is desirable, but we are unable to accommodate the business public with anything less. It is probable that they will diminish for a few weeks now, until the spring season sets in, and our readers will have more consideration at our hands on Sunday morning. There is much that is interesting in advertisements, and those who do not get what they consider the full allowance of news, will find it profitable to read the colnmns that are devoted to business. A Modern "Review."

The North American Review, under its present auspices, is emphatically a modern review. In other words, it is not a review at all, but a monthly newspaper done up in covers, and provided with an index that is by no means as copious as it might be. The editor prints his full name on the first page, and it is a name that crops out in the body of the book in all sorts of unexpected places. There is no doubt that Mr. Allen Thorndike Rice keeps his contributors well in hand, for it is his practice to append to their communications little notes signed by himself, which are either painfully explanatory or exeruciatingly apologetic.

We use the word "communication" advisedly, for, in the March number of the Review there is not an article of any real literary value, and not one more important than can be found in any well regulated newspaper. The communications are "timely" enough, but what has "timeliness" to do with a publication that pretends to be a "review?" They are not only "timely," but they are utterly lacking in that literary interest which gives, or ought to give, permanent value to contributions that one expects to find in a review. Not only is there a total lack of literary interest in the contents of the March number of Mr. Rice's publication, but there is a distinct and an unmistakable flavor of fraud in at least one of the communications. This communication is entitled "A Confederate Veto," and in the table of contents it is credited to Jefferson Davis. The presumption is that Mr. Davis wrote the communication to which his name is affixed in the table of contents-that he wrote it for the North American Review. The truth is that Mr. Davis had nothing whatever to do with the communication that appears in the review. It is a compilation simply-a reproduction of matter found in the government archives. The use of the name of Mr. Davis as a contributor to the pages of the Review is therefore a Quite recently a southern publication was roundly abused for printing as a contribution from Mr. Randall certain extracts from his tariff speeches. This was denounced as a fraud, but it is not so much of a fraud as the unauthorized use which the North American Review makes of Mr. Davis's name. As a matter of course, Mr. Rice does not come out over his own signature and say that Mr. Davis contributed the article to the Review, but the name of Jefferson Davis is catalogued in the table of contents along with other contributors, and the reader fails to discover the fraud until-he buys the magazine and cuts the pages.

As a monthly newspaper, however, the Review is very interesting. Mr. Cyrus W. Field is of the opinion that government telegraphy would be a good thing, and he thinks congress should immediately proceed to purchase existing lines. Mr. Edward Everett Hale tells at some length why he is a Unitarian, though we suppose nobody cares to know why he is a Unitarian any more than they would care to know why he is not an American.

The most interesting communication in the number is Edison's article on "The Air Telegraph," written probably before his recent marriage. He explains how messages may be transferred from a train in motion to the wires along the track without interfering with other messages. General James B. Fry writes an "Open Letter," in which he pins General Sherman down to facts, and Tecumseh himself writes "An Unspoken Address," in which he strives vainly to prove that General Fry has wronged him.

Putting Georgia to the Front.

We print elsewhere the premiums offered by Messrs. Geo. W. Scott & Co., for the best field crops raised by Georgia farmers for

The list is a liberal and comprehensive one, and should provoke wide competition. Who can estimate the benefits that would come to Georgia if one thousand of her farmers in a hundred different counties should contest for these premiums. Barely two hundred farmers have been enrolled in the competition for the past two years. And yet they have established beyond cavil that careful farming and moderate fertilizing will produce on Georgia lands from two to three bales of cotton to the acre, and from seventyfive to a hundred and twenty bushels of corn to the acre Wherever one of these men has planted he has proved an apostle of intensive farming to his neighborhood, and a standing example of what can be done on small farms well tilled. Collectively they have carried the name and the fame of Georgia over the union, and done more to advertise the possibilities of her soil than any dozen state fairs ever held within her limits.

Suppose now these two hundred premium farmers were reinforced this year by 1,000 new contestants, and that in every county in Georgia from five to ten patches of one to five acres each were set aside to show what our old red hills will do when they are given half a chance. Would we need, after that, northern farmers to tell us how we should run our farms? Would not a new and better system of farming be adopted? Does any believe that Mr. Truitt and his rivals who have found by actual experience that they can raise three bales of cotton to the acre with little more expense than one bale to three acres, will ever go back to the latter plan? Will not they and their neighbors learn that it is better and cheaper to raise fifty bales on fifty acres and put a hundred acres in other crops, than to farm so slovenly that it will require the whole hundred and fifty acres to produce the fifty bales. It took over 3,000,000 acres of Georgia land in 188 to raise 800,000 bales of cotton. Suppose the cotton had been raised on 1,000,000 acres and the other 2,000,000 had been put down in grasses or diversified into other crops the state would have been millions of dollars richer. That is just the result the Scott competitions are driving for. It is just what they will reach, if they provoke the wide and earnest competition we may reasonably expect.

A Negro Register of Deeds. When President Cleveland entered the white house he went in with a fixed and positive policy. He has stood by this policy with the sturdiness and inflexibility of man who believes he is a man of destiny. The appointment of a democratic negro to take the place of register of deeds in Washington, until now held by Frederick Dougass, a republican negro, is simply a development of the president's policy. It is but a step beyond the reappointment of Pearson the republican, but non-partisan postmaster of New York. From the time the Erie county sheriff be come mayor of Buffalo, and the mayor of Buffalo became governor of New York, and the governor of New York became president of the United States, the same self-reliant personality has dominated followers, cliques, and parties, blazed out its own course, and walked steadfastly therein. The democratic party has differed with President Cleveland on many questions, and has raised considerable clamor about it. The record shows that it has stirred him from his fixed and chosen convictions no more than the languid September breezes shake Stone mountain from its base.

We confess to not only admiration for the president's unquailing courage, but to confilence in his statesmanship and faith in his destiny. Before his nomination we urged that, Mr. Tilden having withheld his name, the hope of democratic victory rested in the common sense, the prestige and the record of Mr. Cleveland. The course of the campaign and its results convinced us that no other man could have secured the twelve hundred odd votes that gave New York to the democrats. The man who organized victory out of defeat is surely entitled to pahearing at the hands of his party. Many of us differ with him on many points of party policy. It is too early yet to judge of even the points of difference. When a year or so has passed, and the policy of the president has so developed that it may be judged as a whole, and has been passed upon in state elections, it will then be time enough for democrats to seriously put themselves in opposition to the head of the party. The appointment of one black man to fill the office of another black man in Washing. ton, is simply an incident, in the unfolding of a policy that was as fixed as the stars, when Mr. Cleveland was made president. That it will not be pushed beyond the point of defining a general policy, and thereby made irritating or insulting, is demonstrated by the fact that within the past month a colored postmaster has been replaced by a white one in Athens, and a colored collector replaced by a white one in this city.

The Second Year.

President Cleveland has entered upon the second year of his administration. He went into office pledged to restore honesty in the government work, to give all the affairs of his great office close attention, and to lift the public service above the spoils idea of party politics. His enemies are forced to confess that he has patiently and courageously endeavored to redeem every pledge. He has not wholly satisfied his own party friends, and the senate has attempted to curtail his prerogatives, but no fair-minded man will say, after a review of the year's work, that a very large proportion of his appointments are not excellent. He has cared for the general good, both at home and abroad, with rare conscientiousness, diligence and, we believe, efficiency. When we were threatened with a money panic last year, the administration comprehended the situation, and skillfully kept off trouble Our foreign representatives are a credit to the country. Every branch of home affairs has been handled in the interest of the people, and to their satisfaction. No one doubts the president's desire to bring the public service up to a very high standard. Very few will say that the first year has been fruitless. The president has stood to his pledges, and his resoluteness is full of promise in the three years to come.

We do not quote democrats alone. The Brooklyn Union, a leading republican paper, says, in discussing the year's work : "The sentiment for reform, whether in the natat Washington as a sort of compass to steer by, has gone steadily forward. Political petitions have lost their value; the office-seekers have almost deserted the capital; changes for the better have been made in the civil service reform rules: bills have been introduced to prohibit members of con-gress from soliciting offices; Pillsbury and Chase have been rejected by the senate; the civil service commission has been reorganized without being impaired: threats to repeal the law creating have been hushed by failure and ridicule; and best of all, the republican senate, by its chagrin and the president, by reason of his mistakes, have engaged in so stiff a controversy that the tenure of office act is likely to be repealed and the begin ning has been made of what promises to be the successful agitation for open sessions of the senate and the publication of the executive's reasons for

The Union discusses at considerable length the acts and the policy of the administration. Its concluding paragraph, like all the rest of the article, is in a critical vein, but it is withal so fair and sensible, that we gladly reproduce it:

"Mr. Cleveland, himself, whatever come of his efforts as a party leader to modernize and broaden the democracy, has shown the grasp and calmness of a statesman in dealing with the small range of rather simple subjects that have thus far presented themselves. His industry, resoluteness and independence have been so conspicuous, and by com parison with the qualities and habits of his prede cessors so exhilirating, that they have not been obscured even by the serious mistakes he has made. Whatever the future may bring, if he were o die now we believe that this one year as pres dent would give him a lasting place in the mem-ory of his contemporaries and in our annals as one of the foremost men in executive ability and high purpose that have been called to the chief magistracy of the nation."

THE Indianapolis Journal thinks the adminstration has "assassinated" the characters of republican officials. It is a very smart adminstration that can assassinate that which has no existence.

THE war between Fort Worth and Dallas, Texas, is perhaps without a parallel. Smallpox is raging to such an extent in Fort Worth that Dallas protected itself with a quarantine, refusing to allow anybody or anything from Fort Worth to come in. This disorganized business, and the merchants of the pest-ridden city sued Dallas for $300,000 damages. Great excitement prevails, and if the two cities ever come within striking distance there will be a regular hair-pulling time.

HOLLAND having been acquitted, it is now n order for the metropolitan sawdust dealers to unseal their panels and revive business. But they should beware of the untamed and un-tamable Texan. THE Chinese are leaving the Pacific coast in a hurry. The majority will settle in the south and southwest. It goes without saving that hese hundred thousand or more Mongolians are not wanted in this section, but it is certain that they will not be subjected here to such outrages as they have suffered in California and Oregon. The south is the law and order section of the country, and if it cannot cure the Chinese evil by just methods it will endure

THE democratic simplicity of the adminis tration leads to some very grand balls and some mighty late suppers. For our part, we think the democrats ought to be allowed to aper a little.

THE prosecution of Mrs. Isaac Rurry, of New Haven, N. Y., for bigamy, will strike every fair minded person as an unwarrantable person cution. The facts of the case justify Mrs. Rurry. Some years ago when the lady was just sweet sixteen she married her first husband. Some time after her marriage she discovered that her husband was a woman. This state of affairs caused her to feel that she was not bound by her marital vows, and after six months she ran away. In 1884 she married Rurry. Her arrest for bigamy was a great surprise to her and she will make a vigorous defense. In almost every state Mrs. Rurry would be acquitted, but it is impossible to tell what a New York court will do.

It is said that when there is grand opera in St. Louis the scent of toilet soap in the audience is almost overpowering. It seems to be the custom in St. Louis for society to wash up when grand opera strikes the town.

It is a dangerous thing to tackle a preacher The man who thinks that he can insult and hit a mild-looking clergy man with impunity makes a serious mistake. The news columns of our papers show that nine times out of ten the preacher hits back, and he generally puts in his best licks. Here are two cases from Massachusetts. Parson Downs, of Boston, was interviewed by a reporter the other day, and during the conversat on considered himself insulted The parson at once jumped upon the reporter and mauled him within an inch of his life. The affair occurred in a hotel and was witnessed by a bevv of fair actresses who clapped their hands delightedly and cheered Downs on to victory. The next case is that of Rev. J. A. Rood. Mr. Rood was returning home from church in a buggy last Sunday night, at Bridgewater, when some person fired at him. Mr. Rood drew his pistol from his hip-pocket and banged away at his concealed assailant, wounding him and putting him to flight. It will be noted that Downs used nothing but his fists, but it is very likely that he had a weapon concealed somewhere about his person. Rood's thoughtfulness in carrying a pistal to church on Sunday shows that he understood the character of his fellow citizens and knew how to deal with them.

IT is said that the Bell Telephone company is about to withdraw from the state of Indiana, Now will the Pan-Electric kindly withdraw from the democratic party?

ABOUT the meanest thing that a man can do is to commit suicide under such circumstances as to encourage the suspicion that he was killed by his wife. This is what John Remlinger, of Chicago, attempted. He disemboweled himself with a razor, and when he was dving declared that his wife had killed him. Everybody refused to believe him, and the afflicted woman was not arrested.

Among the queer developments of Ohio lities is the fact that Editor John McLean, of the Cincinnati Enquirer, has more money than he knows what to do with,

THE Jewish bankers own the Russian empire. The czar pays the expenses of his government out of the public revenues and hands over the balance to his creditors. The nobles imitate their master, and live on borrowed oney. They have mortgaged one-third of their lands to the banks. Even the small farmers or peasants have largely mortgaged their property. The land banks, as they are called, owe the state bank, which in turn is in debt to foreigners. So, when it is reduced down to a fine point, the Jewish money lenders really own Russia.

Sam Small and the Chicago Preachers.

Sam Small's sharp utterances, indiscriminate denunciations and methods generally have provoked vigorous complaints in Chicago. The result is that the managers of the meetings have decided to depend entirely upon Sam Jones. The following special to the Cincinnati Enquirer tells the story:

The executive committee having in charge the Jones and Small meetings was in session this evening at the Casino. The most important matter discussed was the propriety of running so many meetings, and the conclusion finally arrived at was to dispense with all save the afternoon and evening gatherings, at which Sam Jones will be the attraction. The opinion prevailed that he would prove the more successful in making con-The meetings at the First Baptist church will be dispensed with. This arrangement will go into effect next week. Sam Small can, if so desired, continue to lead

All this is unofficial, and there may be some mistake about it. Sam Jones bears strong testimony to the efficiency of his co-worker. He said only the other day that he considered him the most eloquent preacher in America. The alleged dissatisfaction with Mr. Small probably grows out of his strictures on the charity ball.

These he resolved from his childhood o supplement by the three others-to carry off the derby, to marry a rich heiress, and to become derby, to marry a rich heiress, and to become prime minister of England. He began by bearing off the Epsom blue ribbon, and followed up his luck by winning the hand of HenriettalRothschild. These two preliminaries to political advancement he deemed necessary in a country where horses and money lead to all kinds of success. He re-gards his present position as the first step toward the final object of his ambition—the prime minis-tership.

Trades Assembly Dictation. from the Chicago Times.

The same kind of dictation on the part of ers in relation to the employment of men tha as been attempted in the case of the McCormic rm, in this city, has also been tried recently in the case of a Pittsburg, Pa., newspaper—the Leader. A committee of the trades assembly waited upon the management of that paper, and presented what they were pleased to call the "issue" between it and the typographical union. The "issue" consisted of a demand that the management sign the scale of the typographical union, thereby agreeing to em-ploy in their composing room none but union men. This was an attempt by outsiders to dictate to the management whom they should and whom they should not employ. It was an interference by outsiders with their business. It amounted, under the circumstances, to a demand that the Leader hould discharge "faithful, competent and honor able employes" because they did not belong to a certain organization, or attempt to force them into that organization by a threat of discharge without nowing whether they would be received into the organization or not. To this demand the Leader

CONSTITUTIONALS.

General Gossip and Editorial Short Stop Caught on the Run.

Sam Jones may be safely called the most famous of American preachers. A fine distinction for a man on the fresh side of thirty-five. I doubt if any other preacher has had his daily serm telegraphed over lines leased specially for that purpose-as the Cincinnati Commercial and St. Louis Globe-Democrat are now doing for our Georgia evangelist. The publication of verbatim reports of his sermons added 50,000 a day to the sales of the Cincinnati papers.

While in Cincinnati Sam received a telegram from a railroad company asking what he would charge for delivering a lecture. Sam said, "I didn't want to go and I sent 'em word $500!" next day they telegraphed they had began advertising it and would expect me." Shortly after wards he was asked to name his price for two lec-tures. He says, "I didn't have time to fool with I named $1,000 for the two. They snapped me up before the offer got cold. could easily fill a hundred lecture nights at $500 each if he would consent to give up his chosen work. This he declines to do. He makes no terms for his religious services. He goes where he is called, and when he is through, he takes whatever is offered.

Even the careless reader of his sermons must se that he has widened with his environment and fully met the larger demand on his resources. stead of becoming stale he has freshened as wide fields have opened before him, and caught new inspiration from new surroundings. We had almost wished that he might have lost some of his native roughness of speech, but who should wish fo change in a man, that, speaking twice a day in the same city for a month, can draw more people every day than any living orator, secular or relig ious, under similar circumstances

The Young Men's Christian association, of Atlanta, deserves the superb home the people are about to build for it. Its work is so manly, so practical, so hearty, that it has positive inspiration about it. Last Friday afternoon three hundred and seventy-five boys, under sixteen years of age, were gathered at its rooms, earnestly at work or play. It is nothing unusual to see three hundred young men at its rooms at night. I asked one of its promoters how they managed to get such a hold on the youngsters. "Because, we believe," he said, "that religion should go about with a smile on its face-that it should be wholesome and happy and brave, and natural. We want the boys to see that they not only be better by being religious, but that they can have more fun, and that the religious boy instead of being a sneak or a weakling, 'ought to be the jolliest, manliest boy of them all.,'

In pursuance of this policy the association is fitting up a plot of four acres as a playground for football, baseball, cricket, 'awn tennis and every honest boyish sport. Yes; after the nomination. The railroad commission, prohibition, the convict lease, the State road lease, are questions that no convention can ettle. No matter what is done, some man will be ound to lift the banner of revolt and appeal o one or all of these issues from the convention to the people. Then there will be fun.

The friend of Judge Simmons, quoted in this colnmn last Sunday, sought me again to say: "My statement that Judge Simmons was willing to retire from the gubernatorial race if he did not win from Bacon two thirds of the delegates from Bibb and the five adjoining counties, has been questioned Let me repeat it, in the most positive and deliberate form. Judge Simmons holds that if his homefolks do not indorse him and want him, he will not ask outsiders to take him. If Mr. Bacon will accept the proposition it will be closed mighty uick. But Mr. Bacon won't do it."

It is not generally known that Atlanta has the largest owner of thoroughbred Angora goats in the world, and that the largest of Angora farms is just outside of Fulton county. Mr. Richard Peters sold on Friday one hundred Angora kids from his farm o Messrs. Miller & Sibley, of Pennsylvania, the owners of Matilda 4th, the Jersey cow that now n the eleventh month of her year's test, has beaten the world's record for milk and butter. The kids nade a pretty car load and were shipped yesterday. Mr. Sibley came to Atlanta in person to make this purchase and select the kids.

Mr. Peters made his first importation of Angoras rom Asia Minor many years ago. Mahomet, the am that headed the importation, cost $1,000 in gold, has been embalmed in current literature as The Costly Capricorn; or, the Thousand Dollar Bill, and-a rheumy eyed patriarch-still chews obacco at the head of the flock. Colonel Peters has bred from selections until his goats surpassed mything ever seen on the Asian plains. His kids bring $50 to $150, never going below $40 even in lots of a hundred. He has stocked several ranches in Texas and New Mexico, and now Messrs. Miller & Sibley will try to populate the Pennsylvania mountains with Angoras. STRICKEN WITH PARALYSIS.

Dr. J, J. Caldwell in a Very Critical Condi-

The many friends of Dr. J. J. Caldwell will regret to learn that he is very seriously ill, and there is little hope of his recovery. Dr. Caldwell was in excellent health till Thursday night last, when he was stricken with paralysis of the left arm, side and face. Since that time he has not been able to use his arm, and can take but very little. He is not able to move himself, and is unconscious a great deal of the time. He is about seventy years old, and formerly resided in Griffin. He moved to Atlanta about five years ago, and had a splendid practice here. Dr. Willis F. Westmoreland read medicine under him, and he is considered one of the finest physicians in the state. Dr. Caldwell has only two children. Mrs. John H. Jones and Mrs. J. W. Little. His devoted wife died last year. Drs. Westmoreland and Howell are attending him. His many friends trust that he may recover.

I believe they want to monepolize the girls themselves."

Judge Simmons's Proposition.

From the Butler, Ga., Herald.

Much has already been said by the press of Much has already been said by the press of our state regarding the next gubernatorial candidate, Judge T. J. Simmons and Hon. A. O. Bacon being the most prominent for that position, but as to our choice we have had but little to say upon this subject. We are confident, however, that Judge T. J. Simmons is the choice of a majority of the citizens of Taylor county. We copy from The Constitution of Sunday last the following very fair and honest proposition to which Judge Simmons will willingly submit, and we do not think that more could be asked of him. He is one of the purest of men, and should he be placed in the position as governor, he would prove an homor to on as governor, he would prove an honor to or state.

the heart of one who had the good of our state in view. This proposition is fair in every particular and cannot fail to meet the approval of Mr. Bacon and his friends. Judge Simmons does not seek to bind others, only himself. This proposition on the part of Judge Simmons, coupled with his letter withdrawing from the last gubernatorial race, has endeared him to us and we unhesitatingly pronounce in favor of him. He would make an able executive and give satisfaction to the masses if elected.

From the Sumter, Ga., Republican.

We find the above among the "Constitution-als" in The ATLANTA CONSTITUTION of Sunday, and als! in THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION Of Sunday, and think the proposition of Judge Simmons and his friends a fair one. Now, if Bacon has such a boom in Georgia as some papers would have us believe, let him accept the proposition and abide the de-cision. We have conversed with a number of the leading citizens of Sumter in reference to the gubernatorial canvass, and we are satisfied that Judge Simmons is by far the strongest man of any whose names have been mentioned in that connec-tion. Bacon may be on a newspaper boom with a few papers, but Simmons is on a boom with the people.

From the Perry, Ga., Journal. If the race for governor of Georgia has, or is be, narrowed down to a choice between Hon. A. O. Bacon and Judge T. J. Simmons, we are emphatically in favor of Judge Simmons. We are satisfied that, between these two, the vote of Houston county would be for Simmons by an overwhelming ma-

The first impression of regret and surprise with which the sentence was received was deepened and widened as it was more fully discussed. There was simply one opinion; that was that the punishment was entirely disproportioned to the indiscretion. The publication for the first time of the technical charges and verdict strengthened Dr. Armstrong's case. It showed that he was found not guilty of the charges of immorality and that at the utmost he had been indiscreet. The publication of the testimony of his uncle furnished a natural and legitimate cause for his visit to the dissputable houses in Cincinnati and the charge of intoxication was held to be not proved. The humble and penitent acknowledgment of his indiscretion in his letter to the bishop was quoted frequently in his favor.

Last night Dr. Armstrong sent the following letter to Bishop Beckwith. It contains his final protest as far as the church is concerned against the Chyesteriasy Dr. Armstrong went before his vestry for the purpose of tendering his resignation. This was written in a letter which he read. Twice or three times while reading Dr. Armstrong was overcome by his emotion, and had to pause. The vestrymen, between whom, and their pastor a strong attachment has existed, shared his grief, and when he concluded there was not an eye in the room that was not dimmed with tears. The letter was as follows:

St. Phillip's Recroev, 'Atlanta, Ga., March 5, 1886.

To the wardens and vestry of St. Philip's parish. My dear brethren:—Inasmuch as the bishop of the diocese of Georgia has pronounced sentence upon me of suspension from the ministry of the Protestant Episcopal church for the period of five years. I now beg to resign the rectorship of the parish whose interests and care are in your hands.

That this act, forced upon me by this sentence, brings deep sorrow and pain to my heart, I am sure you will fully believe. Our relations for nearly two years have been of the most pleasant and tender nature, and that I have consided in, and loved you, you know. From the moment since the relation was established you have been kind and generous to me, and during these latter days when have stood faithfully and loyally beside me, supporting and comforting me by your counsel and your prayers. All this makes it proportionately pointful for me to perform this act that will sever our relation as rector and vestry. You will now accept my resignation, and with it I beg you to accept my resignation, and with it I beg you to accept my resignation, and with it I beg to convey to you the assurance that my wife and daughter most sincerely unite.

May the dear Lord bless you collectively and indevidually in all your interests, and in time and termity abundantly reward you for all you have done for my family and myself.

I beg herewith to enclose a communication which I have this day addressed to the bishop, which I hope will meet your approval. In the deepest love, I am yours, etc.

St. Phillip's Church, Vesty Room, Atlanta, Ga.,
March 6, 1886.—We, the wardens and vestry of St.
Phillip's parish, having received the letter of resignation this day, presented to us by Rev. Dr. J. G.
Armstrong, unite in the adoption of the following resolutions, which we believe express not only our own views, but those of our parish generally:
First. That it is with sincere regret that we find ourselves compelled, by circumstances beyond our control, to accept the resignation of our beloved rector.

Third. That we reciprocate in the fullest measure the expressions of personal regard contained in Dr. Armstrong's letter of resignation, and approve his action as communicated to us assuring his estimable wife and daughter of our deep sympathy in this hour of their mortification. We order these resolutions to be spread upon our minutes, and a copy thereof transmitted to Dr. Armstrong.

DR. ARMSTRONG'S FUTURE. DE. ARMSTRONG'S FUTURE.

It is not known what Dr. Armstrong will do. One thing is settled, he will not leave Atlanta. For the present he declines to talk. Beyond accepting with evident gratitude the overwhelming expressions of sympathy and confidence, which come to him from all sides, he has not a word to say. It is known that he he accepted to he not of the greekers. y the press of matorial candin. A. O. sions of sympathy and confidence, which come to him from all sides, he has not a word to say. It is known that he has agreed to be one of the speakers at the mass meeting in behalf of Ireland on the 18th of March. This will probably be his first appearance before an Atlanta audience.

One of the vestrymen of St. Phillip's said: "I, for one, have no idea of letting Dr. Armstrong leave Atlanta. My confidence in him is stronger than ever, for his bearing during the trial, and since has convinced every man who has been brought in contact with him, of his deep, and earnest religious convictions. No plans have been formulated yet, either by his friends, or for, himself for his future. He is too earnest a man to remain idle, he is too brilliant a man to remain passive, he is too good a man to keep out of religious work. No man ever built up a congregation as he built up St. Philip's. The first Easter after he came here he confirmed a class of thirty-six, most of them men and women. The congregation on Sundays had doubled under his administration. In earnestness, massiveness, and strength, its gain was beyond all computation. It was becoming, under his rational and Christian influence, one of the most powerful influences for good in Atlanta. This has been his record with every congregation he has ever served; and to whatever work he turns his hand, and his heart, you will see this record repeated.

last night what he thought of the matter. The reply was:

"The final outcome of the case has not changed my opinion that Dr. Armstrong was entirely free from any immoral purpose or act in all the circumstances which gave a foundation for the sensational newspaper articles published in an irresponsible penny paper in Cincinnati last summer, and which gave rise to the formal proceedings which have since been had. The vestry of St. Phillips investigated this matter thoroughly at the time and since, and as a result have been and are unanimous in their desire that Dr. Armstrong should continue his ministrations in this parish. In this position they are sustained by practically every communicant."

his ministrations in this parish. In this position they are sustained by practically every communicant."

"How about the bishop's action in the matter."

I do not presume to criticise the action of the bishop. We are bound to assume he performed his official duty according to his consciencious judgment. The new evidence which was laid before the bishop established beyond question (so plain that a blind man could read it.) that Dr. Armstrong was not intoxicated or drunk while in Cincinnati, and that his visits to houses of ill fame was dictated by a laudable motive—the hope of reclaiming a fallen woman. The buying of the beer at the solicitation of the women who were there was not ministerial, but is explained by Dr. Armstrong's belief that such action was necessary to insure his safe egress from those houses. But the bishop, under the advice of the church advocate, felt constrained to ignore all the new evidence and confine himself to the finding of the ecclesiastical court, with the result which you already know."

"What will be the effect upon your church?"

"Gan only speak for myself. The theory is that the church moves on in her majestic sway, irrespective of individuals. But in this enlightened age, when men and women think for themselves in matters of church as well as state, a system of church government where such outrageous Injustice as that of Jardine, in Missouri, this of Armstrong, in Georgia, and many others in the record of our church history, are possible, is not such a church government as will commend itself to a free people. There has been for a long time an active movement on foot for the establishment in our church of an appellate court where just such cases of injustice may be reviewed and righted. Personally I am unwilling to remain subject to a church system which ignores charity and denies justice. Dr. Armstrong has been as effectually nailed to the cross as was our Divine Master and I will not share any responsibility for this crime, committed and consummated under the forms of eclesiastical law. When our church provides a court of appeal where her priests and her people can have a hearing beyond the possibilities of its decissions being controlled by the bareful influence of local jealousies, I shall hope to be again perpitted to worship within the church. "Am I to understand that you will withdraw from St. Philips."

"I am. Not only will I withdraw from St. Philips."

High Art.

Probably in no other city of its size in America are there more people with cultiva-ted tastes than in Atlanta. The extent to which the recent furore over "high art" in the matter of home decoration has been carried is best illustrated, perhaps, by the fact that in order to meet the demands of his trade in art goods, Mr. J. P. Stevens, of this city, has been obliged to enlarge his store, at 47 Whitehall, fully fifty per cent. Last night the mechanics finished their work on the improvements and the house now stands second to none in the beauty of its arrangements and in its completeness.

Entering the storeroom the first impression is the exquisite harmony of color everywhere The walls are papered in a combination of gilt, French gray and cream, with a wide frieze of the palest, most delicately tinted flowers. The ceiling is a symphony in blue, gold and cream tints, picked out here and there with a touch of ruddy gold. The dado is of dead gold, with a profusion of dull red and scarlet flowers, giving a peculiarly rich and tasty effect. The floors are covered with patent linoleum in quaint, old fashioned designs. Four magnificent chandeliers light the apartment. These chandeliers were made to order after designs furnished by Mr. Stevens and are of hammered copper, oxydized silver and fire gilt, with globes of ground glass in frost work patterns that are delicate and dainty. At the lower end of the room is a superb Mikado cabinet, filled with rare objects of art, flanked on either tide by heavy Japanese curtains in dull red, imperial yellow and gilt. Large show cases line both sides of the room. Antique bronzes stand here and there on ebony pedestals, while from the front of the store flash and sparkle myriads of diamonds in prismatic hues of witching loveliness. There has just been completed a cute little room which may truly be called "a study in black and white," and which will be used for the display of fine diamonds only.

Original and striking in every detail of arrangement, novel in its decoration and fittings, Mr. Stevens's establishment is a credit to the city as well as to the excellent taste of its originator. its originator.

A Beautiful Catalogue.

Probably the handsomest piece of work ever done in a printing or engraving establishment in Atlanta, is the catalogue just issued for Pelligrini & Castleberry, by Budden & Son. It is a catalogue of about seventy-five pages, each of which has magnificently lithographed illustrations of the different designs in terra cotta which Pelligrini & Castleberry make. There is no other terra cotta establishment in the southern states, and that of Pelligrini & Castleberry is a rapidly extending its field to northern territory. The enterprise is one of Atlanta's most deserving ones and merits the success with which it is meeting. The firm is now filling orders from Virginia to Texas, and will make arrangements for an enlargement of its production. Its designs, set forth in beautiful colored illustrations in its new catalogue, are unexcelled in quality and finish. A Beautiful Catalogue.

OUR BREAD IN DANGER.

The Alarming Increase in Baking Powder Adulterations.

Among recent important discoveries by the food analysts is that by Prof. Morr, U. S. Government Chemist, of large amounts of lime and alum in the cheap baking powders. It is a startling fact that of over one hundred different brands of baking powder so far analyzed, comprising all those sold in this vicinity, not one, with the single exception of Royal Baking Powder, was found free from both lime and alum.

The use of alum is to produce a cheap baking powder. It costs less than two cents a pound, whereas pure cream of tartar costs forty. Its effect upon the system has been ascertained to be poisonous, and overdoses have been attended with fatal results. Lime is the most useless adulterant yet found in baking powders. It is true that when subjected to heat a certain amount of carbonic acid gas is given off, but a quicklime is left, a caustic so powerful that it is used by tanners to eat the hair from hides of animals, and in dissecting rooms to more quickly rot the flesh from the bones of dead subjects.

The effect of lime upon the delicate membranes of the stomach, intestines and kidneys, more particularly of infants and children, and especially when taken into the system day after day, and with almost every meal, is pernicious in the extreme, and is said by physicians to be one of the chief causes of indigestion, dyspepsia, and diseases of the kidneys. Chemists have found 12 per cent., or one-eighth of the weight, of some of the baking powders prominently sold in this vicinity, to be lime. The wickedness of this adulteration is apparent.

The absolute purity and wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder-now affirmed by every chemist and food analyst of prominence, and conceded by all manufacturers of other brands-arises from the exclusive use of cream of tartar specially refined by patent processes, which remove totally the lime and all other impurities. These facilities are possessed by no other manufacturer. The Chemist of the Department of Health of Brooklyn, N. Y., in which city the works of the Royal Baking Powder Company are situated, after recent numerous experiments, reports:

"I subjected several samples of the Royal Baking Powder, purchased from dealers in Brooklyn, to chemical analysis, and I take pleasure in stating that this powder has attained a most remarkable purity. I am unable to detect the slightest trace of lime tartrate in it, while all its constituents are pure and of the highest quality. The 'Royal' is a baking powder undoubtedly of the greatest leavening power, and perfectly DR. O. GROTHE, wholesome.

FEDERAL CEMETERIES.

HOW THE NATIONAL GOVERN-MENT CARES FOR ITS DEAD.

Twenty-Two Burial Grounds Containing an Aggre Thousand Dead Soldiers Who Wore the Blue and Died on the Battlefield.

Major E. B. Kirk, United States quartermaster, has just returned from a tour of in-spection of the national cemeteries located in his department, and placed under his supervision by the government.

A Constitution reporter called upon him yesterday, and in a short interview learned much of the manner in which the United States government takes care of the remains of the federal soldiers who fell during the war in defence of the union.

There are in the department over which Major Kirk has supervision,

TWENTY-TWO NATIONAL CEMETERIES, located as follows: Four in North Carolina, two in South Carolina, four in Tennessee, two in Georgia, three in Mississippi, four in Louisiana, one in Alabama, and two in Florida, with a total of about 132,000 interments.

Theatricals Next Week. The week will open with Oliver Doud Byron and his charming wife in Scudamore's famous melodrama. "The Inside Track," a story of love and laughter, where, say the exchanges, "you'll laugh 'till your sides ache!" The piece will be repeated at a special Tareday matinee, while repeated at a special Tareday matinee, while Tuesday night will present the well known great drama "Across The Continent."

The "Inside Track" has been played for four years in England, and is still drawing crowded houses. Mr. Byron seems to be fitted by nature to play this plece, and gives it in perfection. The Cincinnati Enquirer thus appreciates the piece and the actors.

the actors:
"Havlin's was again crowded at both performances vesterda: by people auxious to see Oliver Byron and his bonnie wife in their new play. The Inside Track,' and it is safe to say that they left well satisfied with the performance. The play is a melodrama, built on the approved English plan. miside Tracs, and it is sate to say that they left well satisfied with the performance. The play is a melodrama, built on the approved English plan, and tells an interesting story in a cle r, concise way, which holds the attention of the audience. This is the best play the Byrons have had since they made a great hit in "Across the Continent." Mr. Byron as Harry Denbiag gives the best piece of acting which has ever been seen from him in this city. His takented wife as a poor Irish boy wins the hearts of her audience, and adds no little to the attractiveness of the play. The support is well balanced, and the play is much superior to the majority of English melodramas."

Wednesday, for mutinee and night only, Flora Moore, the famous Teddy of The Bunch of Keys, will appear in her new play, "The Toy Pistor." This piece is by Gill, who has made "Adonis," the great furore of the Casino theatre, New York, where, for over two years, it has been and is still the crowding attraction. The new play has been a great hit since its appearance in New York, and Flora Moore has contributed much in making it a go. We have already given the high praise bestowed on the star and the piece by the Charleston News and Ceurier of February 35. This testimony cannot be doubted and a treat certainly it will be for those who will see the fair Flora, her songs, her capers and her dances. The week will close with a real theatrical desert, theatrical ice cream and champaigne: The only, the inimitable Lotta will visit our city and appear Friday and saturday matine in "Mam'zelle Nitouche" at Whitney's last night, and no one could have regretted their going, for she was exectainly was at her best, and it would be difficult to find a piece better suited to her.

going, for she was certainly was at her best, and it would be difficult to find a piece better suited to her.

"Mam'zelle Nitouche" is a vaudeville liberally besprinkled with music of Herve's composition. Lotta appears as Denise, a school girl at a convent. She steals and learns the music of comic opera surreptitiously composed by Celestin, the college organist. Her family have determined upon her marriage with Fernando Champlatreux, a young officer, and she is accordingly packed off for home under the guardianship of Celestin on the night his opera is to be produced. They arrange to delay the departure, and Celestin leaves her at an inn while he goes to the theatre. She dresses and follows and puts in an appearance at the green room in time to meet Fernando and take the part of Coriune, an artist who refuses to sing, and goes on as a Japanese lady. Celestin is wild and wants to get her out of the way. They fall in with some young officers and proceed to make a night out of it, when they are interrupted by the major and are compelled to disguise themselves as recruits. They finally get back to the convent. where Fernando visits his betrothed, and is delighted to find her the Mam'zelle Nitouche of the green room and the supper. Replete with absurd situations, sparkling with bright lines, and bristling with zood points it would be hard to imagine a vandeville more worthy of Lotta, or to which she could do more justice than she does to this piece. As the shy school girl, the frightened debutante in fliration, the bizarre artist, the dashing recruit, and the ribbing school girl again she was Lotta, the inimitable, whose graces and fascinations others may imitate, but not successfully. The piquiancy and dash of her acting as Denise is simply a revelation to those who imagine that Lotta has seen her best days. elation to those who imagine that Lotta has The support was everything that could be desir-

Few people appreciate the importance of the patent medicine business of Atlanta. Here is an instance that is suggestive:

Dr. Walter Taylor, proprietor of Sweet, Gum and Mullein and Huckleberry Cordial, now travels seven men by railroad. He is now putting out thirteen men in wagons, who will travel through the country. Mr. Jarvis is building the wagons, and they are very handsome. This force of men will take the southern states first and then go into the northwest. Dr. Taylor has just sent an order for one million copies of his Riddle book, a handsome advertising book in colors. Hespends $100,000 a year in advertising, and reploys nearly one hundred doubling right along this year.

AN EPIDEMIC IN JAIL.

THE PRISONERS DOWN WITH MEN-INCETIS OR SPOTTED FEVER.

United States Surgeon Stiles Becomes Alarmed an commends Their Removal—Judge McCa Orders Them Taken to DeKa!b, Cobb and Bartow County Jails—Full Details.

Considerable excitement was caused yesterday by the announcement that there was an epidemic of meningitis or spotted fever in the Fulton county jail.

Columbus Cockburn, of Murray county, who was confined in the jail yesterday one week ago to serve out a sentence of one month for violating the internal revenue laws, died yesterday morning. He had been sick since Tuesday last, and Dr. C. A. Stiles, surgeon of the United States prisoners, pronounced the disease meningitis or spotted fever. Other prisoners were sick, and his constant presence at the jail was required.

Yesterday morning Dr. Stiles made a report to Judge McCay of the condition of the prisoners in jail, and recommended that the prisoners be transferred to other jails. The judge issued an order for the transfer of the prisoners to Bartow, Cobb and DeKalb coun-

DR. STILES TALKS,

The reporter met Dr. Stiles and asked: "What do you attribute the sickness to? "We are ignorant as to the cause of this discase and naturally ignorant as to the proper means of treating it. A large majority of the patients die, no matter what remedies or what kind of treatment be employed. However, as none of the prisoners other than those of the United States have been attacked with the fever, I attribute one of the exciting causes to the change of open air life, which they have been accustomed to lead, to confinement in Georgia Again Ahead.—As was announce ed some weeks ago, enough money has been aised by the Young Men's Christian association of this city to employ a state secretary and put him in the field to aid the association now organized and assist in establishing new enes. After much correspondence and careful leliberation, a call was extended to Mr. M. B. Williams, general secretary of the La Crosse Young Men's Christian association, a man of excellent methods and thorough experience. The committee has decided to hold a state convention in this city from April 1st to 3d inclusive, for which arrangements are being made. Mr. Williams leaves the city on Moncay to begin his visitation to work up the convention throughout the state. Mr. Williams's "What is the character of these attacks?"

"They differ from the ordinary meningitis or spotted fever, in which a chill is followed by severe headache, and the pulse greatly accelerated.

"In these cases, the chill is followed by agonizing pains in the feet, and a total suspe of pulse.
"Ordinarily, purple spots do not appear until the second day after the appearance of the dis-ease, manifesting themselves first on the chest, thence downwards. In these cases, the pur-plish spots (due to the escape of blood into the skin) varying from a quarter to a half inch in diameter, appear immediately after the chill, on the lower extremities, gradually ascending to the upper."

"How many patients have died?"

"Two; Thomas Heathcock, of Cherokee, and Columbus Cockburn, of Murray county."
"How soon did the parties die after being stricken down?"
"Within twelve hours."

"How many have been down with meningitis?"
"Seven; two have died and balance are still quite sick.'

"Do you think it will become epidemic?"
"Fearing an epidemic, I have requested the authorities here to have all the United States prisoners removed from the jail, and they are to be sent to the jails along the line of the railroads." "When do epidemics of meningitis occur?"

"Most frequent in winter, next most frequent in the spring."
"Is it contagious?"
"There is no evidence of its being so."

"Is the sanitary condition of the jail good?"
"Excellent. I know of none better."
SHERIFF THOMAS TALKS. The reporter went to Sheriff Thomas's office and asked:

"Mr. Thomas, can you give any reason for the sickness at the jail?"
"Yes, sir." was the reply. "I think it is due simply to taking men from the pure air of the country and putting them in close quarters. The sickness is confined entirely to the United States prisoners, and it is the men who have only been in jail a short time who are sick."

States prisoners, and it is the men who have only been in jail a short time who are sick,"
"Do the men have plenty of covering?"
"Plenty of covering? Well, I should say so. I cannot tell how many pairs of blankets we have at the jail, but I know a man gets all he wants. I just paid Dr. Fox one hundred dollars for blankets today. All a prisoner has to do is to ask for covering and he can get twenty pairs of blankets if he wants them."
"Do you thing carrying the prisoners to "Do you thing carrying the prisoners to other jails will help them?"

"I do not, for I think we have as good accommodations here as anywhere. It is simply the close confinement. Men who were raised in the pure air of the country can't stand close confinement. WHAT A PRISONER SAID.

John Beck, a prisoner from Hart county, who has eighteen days to serve yet, said: "I can tell you, sir, there is no reason for the sickness of the men except the close con-finement. Mr. Poole and Mr. Osborne are as kind to us as they can be under the circum-

"Plenty of cover?"
"Yes, indeed. We have every comfort here. I don't think there is a prisoner here who can object to the treatment they receive."
"How about going to other jails?"
"It will do no good in the world. It is a piece of foolishness, and I for one don't propose to leave if I can get out of it. We are just as safe here as we would be anywhere. The United States ought to get a big plantation somewhere near here, and when they get one of usffor making a little spirits, send us to the plantation and let us work. There is not a man in the jail who would object to it, but every one would be glad of the chance."

THE FIDDLE AND STRAWS Last night when the men heard that they were going off, the fiddle was brought out, and the trusties in the office had an hour or two of the trusties in the office had an hour or two of music and dancing; while one played another stood by and "beat straws." The men seemed glad that they were going, and yet every one said if they had to stay in jail they had rather stay in Fulton county.

Lung Trouble Relieved.

Three and a half years ago I gave up my business on account of consumption. I spent two seasons in Florida and one in California. I have been under treatment of physicians all the time, among them some of the most prominent in this city, and I have kept growing worse and worse. I got to be a mere shadow, and could scarcely walk. On the 14th of last September, I kept my bed for I was not able to get out of it, and the doctors as well as my friends, all expected me never to come out of it alive. I was having frequent and profuse hemorrhages, and on three different occasions I bled until I be came insensible. About six weeks ago, I heard of S. S. S., and began taking it. Its effects have been wonderful. I have not had a hemorrhage since I began it. I was soon able to sit up and even dress myself. My appetite became good. I could eat and retain my food, and my color returned. I gained flesh and strength rapidly, and I am now walking about town wherever I wish to go. It is certainly a great surprise to me and everyone who knows me. Long since they have all expected me to die. I am willing and want all who suffer with lung disease to know of me and my case, and I advise all such to take Swift's Specific and live. These are not idle words, but absolute facts, which will with pleasure, be substantiated for any who may doubt.

About twenty years ago I discovered a little sore on my cheek, and the doctors pronounced it cancer. I have tried a number of physicians but without receiving any permanent relief. Among the number were one or two specialists. The medicine they applied was like fire to the sore, causing intense pain. I saw a statement in the papers telling what S. S. S. had done for others similarly afflicted, I procured some at once. Before I had used the second, bottle the neighbors could notice that my cancer was healing up. My general health had been bad for two or three years. I had a hacking cough and spit blood continually. I had also a severe pain in my breast. After taking six bottles of S. S. S. my cough left me and I grew stouter than I had been for several years. My cancer has healed over but a little spot about the size of a half dime, and it is rapidly disappearing. I would advise everyone with cancer to give S. S. S. a fair trial.

I have been exclusively engaged in the special business of negotiating this class of loans for twenty years in the northwest (state of lowa) up to 1880, and since 1880 here in Atlanta.

Complete abstracts of title by competent attorneys and all interest and principal collected without a cent of expense to lenders. I use coupon notes, making them as convenient as government bonds. Investors are invited to call and have a talk, whether they desire to invest or not. Testimonials from people who have loaned through me for years are on file in my office.

ay of the Dyar Double Acting Treadle.

TRIBUIES TO ITS MERIT. This is to certify that, in my opinion, the discov ery and application of the walking movement which we find in the Double-Acting Treadle, as applied by Mr. James F. Dyar to the sewing machine, does away with the great objection usually made to its use by females, and divests it of the appellation of "Woman Killer." JAS. F. ALEXANDER, M. D.

I have carefully examined the sewing machine attachment, the invention of James F. Dyar, by which the force or weight necessary to propel the treadles has been greatly diminished, thereby sav-ing great labor and exertion to the operator. I thing this improvement overcomes much of the tedium and injury to females in the use of the machine, and dive-ts it of some of its most obnoxious features as a labor-saving machine. G. T. ROY, M. D.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 14, 1884. This is to certify that I have carefully examined the Double-Acting Treadle to the sewing machine, excellent contrivance, enabling delicate females to run the machine with impunity.

W. D. BIZZELL, M. D. Prof. Practice Southern Medical College

Upon a careful examination of the principle involved in the operation of what is called the Double-Acting Walking Treadle, invented by Mr. James F. Jiyar, I am satisfied that the movement is a decided improvement over that heretofore in use, as it substitutes for the agitating and straining motion of the pelvic organs so injurious to the health of females, a movement like that of ordinary natural locomotion. This approximation to the natural movements does certainly give this machine an important advantage, and one which will remove, in great measure, the evils so frequently resulting from the use of the old treadle. T. S. POWELL, M. D.

A great many of our people have my Treadle, using it every day to their entire satisfaction. I am prepared to attach my Treadle to any machine. without defacing the machine in any way. To parties who wish to buy I will put it on for trial. If not satisfied in ten days, will replace their old treadle without cost to them. Leave or send your

Knows pretty well what the people want! Here he comes to the front now with a grand stock of new spring goods, and the way that he is selling them is surprising. He has purchased largely for every department of his house, and he intends to sell plenty of goods every day in the year, rain or shine, hot or cold. The way to do this is to have just what the people want, and to charge low prices for them. His stock of new dress buttons is prices for them. His stock of new dress buttons is superb, and embraces everything which is new and choice therein, and his new spring dress goods are creating quite a futore. When it comes to Embroideries, John Keely is away ahead of everybody. Such a glittering array of those lovely goods is not to be met with elsewhere. Over twenty thousand dollars worth of them in stock. True it is that John Keely's store has not got good windows in which to display them, but—he has got the goods for all that, and has them in such quantity and variety as you can find them in us other house. No trouble to show goods. No faulcy prices asked. No failure to find just what you want here. Be sure to read Captain Keely's advertisement on our front page today.

It is astonishing the amount of goods received by that wonderful merchant, J. M. High. To us (passing his house every day) it seems as if he must buy enough goods to supply from his own stock not only Atlanta, but all of the state. Who would have thought five years ago that this man would today be one of the largest retail merchants in the

AN INTERESTING TALK WITH A PHYSICIAN.

Dr. Wilbur, the Great Specialist, Talks to a Constitution Reporter About Curing Diseases-Why Physicians Call Him a Quack-His Success.

Dr. Wilbur, the great specialist, who is stopping at the Markham house, occupies the same suit of recoms that Oscar Wilde occupied when the æsthetic foreigner was in Atlanta. The suit overlooks Loyd street, opposite the Western Union telegraph office, and is on the sec ond floor. Dr. Wilbur is busy from early morning until dark. He sits in an easy chair, which is made even more comfortable by two large pillows for cushions. On a table at his eft are piles of letters, and usually a basket of fruits, a box of cigars and a stand of matches,

The doctor is a great smoker.
It takes a dollar's worth of It takes a dollar's worth of ten centers for him every day. Sitting in his casy chair and toying with a neat cane, Dr. Wilbur receives his patients who are ushered into his room one at a time. His odd moments a e devoted to answering his letters, and it is an astonishing fact that he receives from fifty to a hundred letters a day, some of them from the remotest parts of the union. A CONSTITUTION reporter who was looking at the big stock of mail yesterday, said to the dector.

And yet some of them call you a quack?' said the doctor with a twinkle in his eye, "it is a funny thing this matter of quacks. Two men may graduate from the same college, with the same marks and the same ability: One advertises that he can cure diseases and the other does not advertise; one is branded a quack and the other is not. It is oueer. There is a law in this state against quacks. A man most have a diploma when he sets up to practice medicine in Georgia. Well, I have five diplomas, a gol I medal and a certificate of honor from the University of New York. I was one of the faculty of the medical department of the University of Vermedical department of the University of Vermont, and I was also surgeon in the St. Bartholomew hospital, in England, a position which I won by competitive examination. It is only the jealous who call me a quack. Old physicians who have good reputations always receive me cordially. It is the younger ones who talk against me."

who talk against me."

"Why is it that you are so successful with chronic diseases?"

"I have made chronic diseases a lifelong study. I make a specialty of such diseases."

"Tell me about this: Some people claim that your charges are very low and others claim that they are very high?"

"The charge depends wholly upon the disease. My plan, you understand is no cure.

case. My plan, you understand, is no cure, no pay. My only charge is for medicines until a cure is effected, and when that is done I make a reasonable charge for my professional services. Ordinarily, physicians charge for medicines and for ser-vices, whether the 'services' do any good or not."

"They say if you were a first-class physician you would not travel."

"Do they?" asked the doctor. "Well, that's a good joke. If there were no chronic diseases here that your physicians had failed to cure I would not be traveling either. I am here because uncured diseases are here. If I fail it will be my loss. But as regards the matter of reputation, I was located in Rhode Island for eight years, and I give on my circulars as references the names of clergymy circulars as references the names of clergy. my circulars as references the names of clergy-men, congressmen, lawyers, physicians, drug-gists, etc. They will testify to my ability as a physician and to the additional fact that I was entreated to remain in Rhode Island. Why should physicians attack me? I make it a rule to advise a man who consults me to re-main with his home physician if he is doing well. It is the well-nigh hopeless that I have come to cure?"

"How long will you remain in Atlanta?"
"Until the night of the 15th. My stay was prolonged because I had made a great many operations upon the eye, and had removed some tumors which necessitated my personal supervision."

From Atlanta, Dr. Wilbur will go to Florida and take a week's rest. He will then go to Augusta for a brief period. When the doctor completes his tour he will establish an institution in Louisville, Ky., for the cure of chronic diseases.

completes his tour ne witt estatish at institution in Louisville, Ky., for the cure of chronic diseases.

Comparatively few of his testimonial are published, but below are statements of several cures effected in Atlanta by him.

A child of Mr. C. A. Rauschenberg, of 123 Whitehall street, has had a disease that battled the skill of some of the best physicians of Atlanta for several months. The child's head was completely covered with one large sore and a dry seab. For the last five weeks the little child had to be held or carried all night long, so great was her suffering, and her parents had about despaired of ever having her cured. When the child was taken to Dr. Wilbur, Mrs. Rauschenberg told her physician that the baby was worse than ever. Dr. Wilbur at once said he could cure the child, and they placed her under his treatment. The remedies he prescribed acted like magic, giving instant relief, and instead of tossing and crying all night long, dropped into a calm and tranquil sleep. In a short time her head was completely healed, the child well and as happy as a kitten. She does not now look like the same baby, her whole countenance having undergone a change since her cure.

Mr. W. J. Tucker, who works at 48 Whitehall street and resides at 87 Loyd street, has been a great sufferer from chronic rheumatism for months, which made him so lame it was with great inconvenience he could get about at all. When in the store he would try to rest his weary limbs by leaning his hands on the counter, until they, too, became effected equally as bad. After having tried many of Atlanta's best physicians in vain, he decided to try Dr. Wilbur, notwithstanding he had been advised not to. And he did, with the happiest of results. After taking Dr. Wilbur's treatment a short time, his pain had all left him, and his life, which before was a burden, has become one of happiness.

Mrs. T. F. Williams, of Gogganville, Ga., has hal a tumor growing on each evelid for there year; piest of results. After taking Dr. Wilbur's treatment a short time, his pain had all left him, and his life, which before was a burden, has become one of happiness.

Mrs. T. F. Williams, of Gogganville, Ga., has had a tumor growing on each eye-lid for three year; which greatly disfigured her and would, undoubtedly, if allowed to remain in time prevented her from opening her eyes. The situation of the tumors necessarily made the removal of them quite a delicate surgical operation. Dr. Wilbur removed them so quickly that Mrs. Williams, though a timid lady did not take any anaesthetic, and expressed little or no pain.

Mr. G. W. Camp, of Camp & Son, 196 Marietta street, residence 162 Luckle street, for a number of years has been troubled with dropsy, being better at some time then getting worse. Has tried nearly all the physicians of Atlanta of any reputation, but all alike falled to cure him. He became so dropsical that he could not lie down, was very short of breath at slight exertion, etc. When Dr. Wilbur commenced treating him two weeks ago, he had slept sitting up for a month. His abdomen has now returned to its normal size, he can sleep in bed all night, his appetite is returning; is gaining fiesh and considers he is far on the road to recovery.

Mr. Wm. Doyle, of the Markham house, who has suffered unfold agony since last March, when he discovered the cause of his trouble was a tape worm. He has been treated by three eminent M. D.'s, and has taken many remedies in vain. He was treated for it nearly all the time and was nearly discouraged. He heard of Dr. Wilbur's success in treating similar cases, and called on him. The doctor said he could cure him in a short time and gave him some medicine, and in oue hour, much to his surprise, he was relieved of a monster tape worm thirty feet long, which had made life a burden to him for months. Mr. Doyle has gained flesh and now feels like a new man, and cannot say enough in praise of the doctor.

Mr. Hugb Mitchell had a large tumor on his neck which he had tried in vain to have cured for a long time. It caused him much pain and disignr-ed him greatly. Dr. Wilbur gave him some medi-cine and in a few days it had entirely disappeared.

A UNIQUE OCCURRENCE,

A Man Comes From Alabama to Express His Gratitude to an Atlanta Man.
"Is this Dr. Walter Taylor?"

The speaker was an elderly man, of fine appearance, and evidently a stranger in the city. The question was addressed to Dr. Walter A. Taylor who sat in his office immersed in the correspondence of his immense business.

"That is my name, sir," he replied, looking up nouiringly from his work.

"My name is Austin. I live at Gulman, Ala. I have come to see you, Dr. Taylor, to express to you my gratifude."

Dr. Taylor smiled and inquired as to the occasion of his gratitude.

"You have saved my life, sir, and I come to tell you that, and to shake your hand, About a year ago I was taken with pneumonia, and it developed into a very ugly case. I was in my bed for nice months, and was harrassed and weakened with a cough that was almost constant. Nothing would relieve it. I had physiciam after physician, and tried temedy after remedy. I have studied medicine myself, and now in the jewelry business. I was almost worn out, and had about given up my case as hopeless. One day I staggered out of bed, to have a consultation with all the physicians, to see if I could not, as a last resort, obtain some relef from my ills. The physicians in consultation told me that they could do nothing for me, and, hardly able to walk, I made my way to a drugstore, and while in there I spoke of the consultation just held in my case to the druggist, and he said: "Here is a remedy that I bear very highly spoken of. I know nothing of it from personal experience, but it has a great reputation, and my customers like it." The remedy namded me was Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullein. I took it with about the same spirit that a drowning man would catch at a straw. I had little hope of its efficacy, but I thought I ought to try everything, and therefore. took the bottle. I was barely able to get back to my bed again. It was an effort for me to walk down stairs. I was disspirited, hopeless and weak beyond expression, and continually growing weaker. With the very first bottle of Sweet Gum and Mullein my condition improved. It has been less than five weeks since feran on your remedy, and now I waik and travel without the slightest inconvenience up stairs or down stairs. My cough has left me, my health almost is restored, and fam in good condition. It is my carnest conviction that Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullein a

"When I get so low down as to have to preach against tobacco and ear-bobs I will quit preaching altogether," said Sam, somewhat petulantly.

The Queen Sees the Elephant. Thursday was the first birthday of the late duke of Albany's son, and Hengler's circus was commanded to appear at Windsor eastle for a performance at the royal riding school. A special train of horse boxes and saloon carriages took the the company and equipment from London. On its arrival, by the queen's invitation, conveyed through Sir Henry Ponsonby, the entire company lunched in the castle. The queen's health was proposed by Mr. Albert Hengler. The queen, the duke and duchessof Connaught and family, the duchessof Albany, Princes and Princess Christian and family, Princes Beatrice, Prince Battenberg and the court circles were present. After the performance the queen, who looked ill and worn, inspected the circus stud in the royal mews. Miss May Villion, the bicycle rider, aged four years and a half, who was born in Chicago and who made her debut when two years old at Philadelphia, the queen ordered to be presented to her. The child made a courtesy and the queen spoke German to her. The child was cool and collected, and the queen was assonished at her precocity and eleverness. NOT MUCH COFFEE.

THE BLOOD -- ITS DISEASES -- HOW CURED.

The most wonderful blood poison remedy ever compounded is B. B. B. (Betanic Blood Balm.) the healing qualities of which are truly phenomenal. Scientific research has failed so far to produce its equal. There is no claim that the ingredients of this great remedy are new; on the contrary, its component parts are all and favorably known to the medical world in their separate uses, but the combination of these ingredients were never at-tempted until the formula of B.B. B. was made. For Scrofula, Blood Poison, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Kidney Troubles, Female Complaints, etc., it is simply unapproachable, and as a true tonic it is unequaled. We do not expect the reader to believe all we say as to the unprecedented merits of this remedy, for there are so many able, yet unscrupulous advertisers that it would not be safe to regard everything said in an advertisement as true. Some of those column, double-column and whole page ad's remind us of a long-ago friend who traveled a great deal; that was before there were many railroads; and as all travelers those days had to do so he had to put up at night wherever night caught him. Consequently, sometimes he had to stop at places where the accommodations were not of the very best. He was a great lover of coffee, and coffee he would have; but, said he, in a very solemn tone. I have sometimes to drink a gallon of water o get a taste of coffee. In an ad page there is us ually about as much genuine truth as coffee in our friend's gallon of hot water. For our part we would take the grain of coffee in the small French cup and have it well creamed. Give us quality and not quantity, and not over-much sweetened, especially with sorghum syrup (the productions of a prolific morbid brain). Who can find a needle in a hay stack? much less truth in some page ads! Won derful times these; broad acres of the Sahara with out an oasis. Give us the acre that will produce three bales, or a hundred and forty bushels of wheat instead. Yet this does not prove that every remedy is not as represented. We only ask a trial before a doubting public. feeling confident that one bottle will establish its intrinsic value as a blood-purifier. We can only present a few certificates within this limited snace out in our "Book of Wonders" will be found more than enough to convince the most skeptical, and if then not satisfied we can show the original certificates, and also an unlimited number of persons who have been cured of some of the most noted cases of blood poison, etc., on record, by the use of B. Snugly enseoneed within a moss embowered and vine-clad verandah, and almost hid from view amid sweet-scented honeysuckles, was seated a fair Atlanta nymph, whose beautiful dark eyes and alabaster complexion and volumptous contour, seemed to DAZE the young gent by her side, who ever and anon, while circumnavigating her slender waist, gave her a BUSS and then a RE-BUSS, to the amazement of a pedestrian who happened to be passing that beautiful moonlight night. ONLY THINK! ONE SOAP FOR ALL USES!

To the Housekeeper and her Help, to the Boarding-house Mistress and her Lady Boarders, to the Farmer's Wife and her Daughters, for the Toilet and Bath of every Lady of Refinement, The Frank Siddalls Soap offers great advantages.

Among the Housekeepers of New England (where the fly abusekeeping is proverblal) it has gained namense favor, and there is no better evidence of the merits of an article than to be able to say that it meeds approval in the Homes of New England. FOR LAUNDRY AND KITCHEN USE-

JUST THINE! No Scattling or Boiling! No Smell on Wash-day!
Clothes Clean and E cantifully White, and as Sweet as if never youn!
No Rough, Red Hands! Clothes remain White even if put away for years!

A girl of 12 or 13 can easily do a large wash without even being tired!

And best of all, the wash done in less than half the usual time Use The Frank Sidds s Soap for washing Dishes :- it is the only Soap that leaves the dish-rag Sweet and Whit and the only Scap that can be depended up at to remove the Smell of Figh, Orions, etc., f.o a Forks and Dishes. When you have a dirty dish-rag dont blame your servants; it is not their fault; for you have given them soap mad of rancid grease, and the result is a foul dish rag; use The Frank Siddalls Soap, made of Pure Beef Suet, and you will have a clear sweet smelling cloth. So here is the House seeper's choice: Common Scap and a feet dish-rag-or- The Frank Siddalls Scap and a dish-rag to be prouded

FOR HOUSE-CLEANING This is where The Frank Siddalls Soap appeals to the real ladylike Housekeeper Use it for Scrubbing and Cleaning. Use it for washing Paints, Windows and M Wine-glasser, Golde to, and all Glass Vessels; ordinary Ecap, as is well known, is not fit for washing glass, while The Frank Siddalls Soap is a most elegant thing for this purpose and does

For washing Bod Clothes, and Bedding, even of Patients with Contagious and Infectious Diseases, and for washing Etensils used in the Sick-room, it can be relied on to cleanse and purify without scalding or boiling a single article. FOR WASHING BABIES AND BABY CLOTHES-

Babies will not suffer with Prickly Heat, or be trouble with sores of any kind, when nothing but The Frank Siddalls Soap is used, its ingredients being so Pure and Mild.

Dont use Soda for washing Nursing Bottles or Gam Tubes dont even scald them:—wash them only with this Soap, and they will never get sour, but will always be sweet and clean. ---- FOR THE SCHOOL TEACHER-

It is the best thing for washing blackboards and school slates, leaving them free from grease; the Soap does not even have to be rinsed off. Elackboards that are considered worthless can be restored by washing with The Frank Siddalls Soap. Will cure Itching Piles so quickly as to

Eminent Physicians claim that Skin Diseases, such as Ringworm, Salt Rheum, Tetter, Fimples on the face, etc., are caused by soap made from rancid grease:—

The Merchant and his Clerk, the Photographer, the Optician, the Artist, the Jeweler, the Printer, the Bather at the Turkish Bath, the Barber, the Hotel, the Stable, the Army and the Navy, will all reap great benefit from the The trank Siddalls Soap. ---FOR SHAVING---

Its heavy, lasting lather is so different from that of any Shaving Soap that its superiority is almost incredible; the face never burns or smarts, no matter how dull the razor, how tender the skin, or how closely shaved, and the Sponge and Soap Cup will always be sweet-smelling. IMPORTANT FOR SHIPBOARD AND ARMY USE—
It washes freely in hard water, and he sure to remember, where water is scarce, that
The Frank Siddalis Way of Washing only takes a few buckets of water for a large wash.

----FOR HORSES, HARNESS, CARRIAGES, etc.-It is vastly superior to Castile Soap for washing a horse's a washing Sores, Galls, Scratches, etc., it is indispensable. No Stable is complete without it. For Harness it is better than Harness Soap, thoroughly cleansing the leather and rendering it soft and pliable, while for washing Cars and Car Windows, eaning the running-gear and bodies of time carriages, it is without a rival; by its use Paint and Varnish will last much longer, and the Windows and Lamps will be as clear as crystal The Frank Sidd il a Soap is eleg int for washing Printing Ink from the hands, and from Printies' Rollers, Type and Electrotypes, being much better than Benzine, and safer, as shocking accidents by fire often occur from Benzine; and Parents whose children use Amateur Printing Presses shouldrenember this. Type and Rollers washed with The Frank Siddails Soap are in spiencial condition for immediate use, and will take the link readily.

SPECIAL FOR PHYSICIANS To the Physician, the Druggist, the Nurse and the Patient its importance is becoming nore and more widely known and appreciated, and it is rapidly superseding Imported Castile and similar soaps for use in the Sick-room, the Nursery and the Hospital.

A CERTAIN CURE—IN CASE OF INGROWING TOE-NAILS—A CERTAIN CURE place of cotton-wool a little of the Frank sidealls Soap about be kept pressed between the nail and tender flesh—one trial will prove its superiority over cotton-wool. For washing Old Running Sores, Bed Sores, Cuts, Wounds and Burns; for washing Chafed Piaces on Infants and Adults; foruse by persons suffering with Tetter, Ringworm, Sait Rheum, Itching Piles, Eruptions on the Face, and for children afflicted with Scaly Incrustations, it is without any of the injurious effects so often experienced when other soap is used; while for washing the Invalid it is a most valuable aid to the Physician, by the theorephyses with which it removes the adultant from the skin that would otherwise the thoroughness with which it removes the exhalations from the skin that would otherwise tend to counteract the action of his medicines by closing up the pores, and which cannot be accomplished by any other soap. Letters from well-known Physicians, describing their experience in their practice with The Frank Siddalls Soap, leave no doubt of the truth of these assertions.

Use it for waching Somes on the Feet, caused by walking or wearing tight shoes.

Always leave plenty of the lather on—dont riase the lather off.

For washing Graduate Measures and Mortars it is better than anything else.

Dont ask your wife to try The Frank Siddalls Soap Will cure Ingrowing Toe-nails. if you are not willing to try it for Shaving and Toilet The lasting properties of the lather of The Frank Siddalls Soap are very remarkable, and add greatly to its value for shaving purposes: without any question, the lather from The Frank Siddalls soap is far more plasting than that from any other soap - not excepting the most celebrated makes of this country or Europe.

And Now for the Clean, Neat, Easy, Genteel, Ladylike FRANK SIDDALLS WAY OF WASHING CLOTHES There is nothing intricate about these directions:—any child 10 or 12 years of age—who has common sense—will have no trouble in following them:

THE SOCIAL WORLD. EVENTS OF WEEK ON THE SOCIAL

A Number of Pleasant Paragraphs About the Happenings in Society Circles—The Meetings of Clubs—Several Weddings Past and in Prospect—Notes of Various Sorts.

The concert to be given on next Thursday night by the Atlanta musical association, is an event that will be looked upon with a great deal of interest, because it is the beginning of a series of musical entertainments that will be sure to advance the tastes, and a source for constant improvement of all lovers and amateurs in music.

It is the purpose of the association to be to Atlanta what other leading societies are to other cities, and the basis upon which they are organized should commend itself to all of our citizens who desire to cherish and encourage music, the quality of which will be advanced to a higher order as the association grows from year to year.

The board of directors expect as soon as possible to get such a hall as will meet their wants, where associates can spend an evening at the rehearsel and where leading artists can be welcomed as guests of the association during their stay while in the city. In other words to establish a headquar-

Professor Salter, the musical director, is a gen tleman eminently fitted for the position. He is taking great pains to establish such a course as will the of lasting benefit to its members and creditable to director, and we are confident will bring the as sociation up to a high standard of excellence.

The programme numbers some of our best tal-ent, and we do not hesitate in the least to say that such artists as Professor Denck, Professor Schultze, Mad Werner and Miss Crippin would grace the concert stage of any of our most critical cities. When we see two such master performers announced in duett (plano and violin) as Denck and Schultze, certainly it is a treat not often ex-celled in New York or Boston. Atlanta people celled in New York or Boston. Atlanta people should encourage our association in bringing for-ward such an array of talent.

The concert will come off on Thursday night at Give's opera-house. The Misses Morgan, of Washington, D. C., spent last week with their sister, Mrs. Emory Speer, in Savannah. This week these accom-plished young ladies, together with Miss Laura Speer, of Athens, will be the guests of Mrs. D. N Speer, at her beautiful home on Peachtree street. 'The children's entertainment which was given in the early part of last week at the Concor-dia hall, was repeated Friday afternoon at the seme place, and passed off even more smoothly than did the first performance. There was a fine attendance, and the audience gave vent to their feelings of pleasure at the rendition of the various Nearly all of the original programme was presented, and it would have been a hard matter to improve upon it, as it was arranged with fine taste and judgment.

C. T. Logan announced the various features of the programme as they were to be rendered. Among the new attractions presented, was the instrumen-tal duet by Messrs. Barry and Rawson, the former on the piane, and the latter on the violin, which was given with fine effect.

The rendition of this entertainment reflects much credit upon the young ladies of the ladies' auxiliary committee of the Young Men's Christian Association. Through their efforts the parlors of the Young Men's Christian Association, have been carpeted, papered and furnished. Friday night, at the residence of Mr. W. H. McClain, corner Wheat and Calhoun streets, the Rose Bud Missionary society of the Fifth Baptist church held one of its most interesting meetings. A long, varied and interesting programme was enjoyed by all present. Among other things were the following: Vocal duet, by Mr. C. J. Porter and Miss Sadie Farrell; a vocal solo by Miss Alice King, also one by Miss Mittle Guimarin. Recitations were well rendered by Misses Eva McClain and Alice King and Mr. O. B. Johnson. The Rose Bud is in a most flourishing condition and is a great assistance to the church—both in a social and financial way.

Miss Maude Kirk gave a tea party Wednesday evening, March [3d, at the Kimball, to Miss Llola Bruce, Miss Cornie Bullock, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Covell, Mr. Rice, Mr. George Kendall and Mr. Valckert Bullock. The tea was an occasion of rare

There was a very large crowd present last Wednesday evening at the residence of Mr. D. Flynn, 95 Perry street, to participate in a raffle for a beautiful pair of bracelets. The fortunate one was Mr. R. H. Ivey, who threw 44. After a few moments intermission, a most enjoyable dance was indulged in by those present. Miss Ida Flynn proved herself a most charming hostess occasion, and all left voting the affair a happy

A rare treat is in store for the music lovers of Atlanta. Mr. John F. Barclay, superintendent of the Marietta street mission, has arranged with Madame Fry's concert company, of Boston, to give one of its concerts at DeGive's opera house Mon-day, March 15, for the benefit of the mission. This company comes very highly recommended by the press wherever it has performed. The company is company of Mane Fry has three is composed of Mme. Fry, her three accomplished daughters, Misses Lulu, Alta and Eugene, assisted by Mr. A. J. Wells (late of Well's cathedral Engby Mr. A. J. wells (tate of well's cathedral England) and Mr. J. A. under the direction of Professor Alfredo Barili who is a most accomplished musician and able director, the chorus did unusually good work. The one chorus: "The sacrifices of God" was par-ticularly fine, as was the grand finale. In the ac-companyment to Mrs. Katzenberger the chorus also did fine work, and the bassi and contralti deserve especial mention. Mrs. Katzenberger sang the familiar: "Oh for the Wings of a Dove," with great feeling, and her phrasing was perfect. The introduction to the oratorio was rather-too

The introduction to the obsolon was rather too classical to prove popular, but it was well interpreted by the organist, Mrs. Frank Sayles Richards. Mrs. Annie Mays Dow and Messrs. Hardeman and Goldsmith sang the three first solos and Mrs. Ida Kendrick Smith followed with an equisitiy interpreted recitation, "Woe Unto Them." This is the most difficult kind of music to sing well but Mrs. Smith met and overcame all the difficulties

Owing to the illness of Professor Samuel P.

Snow, Mr. Hardeman filled his place. Mr. Snow had been the prime organizer of this entertainment and it was with regret the audience learned of his indisposition. The recitation and aria for tenor, by Mr. Alex. W. Smith, was the best number of the oritorio by all odds. In expression, enunciation and musical expression, it was all that could have been desired.

could have been desired.

The aria, "O, That Thou Hads't Harkened," by Mrs. Bow, was spod, and the double quartette was fine. Great credit reflects upon Professors Barili and Snow for the work they have done in this good cause. The musical taste of Atlanta is elevated by such works as these they have given us and it is to be hoped the musical organization they and it is to be hoped the musical organization they have effected will be made a permanent one.

Mrs. J. W. Rankin gave an elegant lunch to a few of her lady friends Tuesday afternoon at five o'clock. Among those present were Mrs. Gholstin, Mrs. Dr. Baird, Mrs. E. H. Werner, Mrs. B. W. Although several whose names were on the programme were absent, quite hames were on the programme was furnished, and a de-lightful evening bassed. Miss D. Grosse, the charming daughter of the host, rendered a brislisht piano solo. Her touch is exquisite, and her execution finished. Miss Minnie Quinn recited a dramatic poem entitled "The Might of Love," Mrs. J. T. Pendleton sang "Come] Where the Birds Sing Sweetly," in a most charming manner. Major C. A. Hubner read an original essay, every line of which portrayed the modest genius and true philanthropy of his character. Mr. J. W. Warnock sang the "Dear Little Shamrock" in his inimitable style. He was followed by Mr. Bartow D. Pattie, who sang Emmel's exquisite little ballad, "The Shamrock." Miss Anna Bennett rendered a dialect reading with admirable taste. Mr. Warnock wa requested to sing "Mr. O'Sullivan," which he did.

By special request! Miss Imman recited "Kentucky Belle," a character-impersonation.

Mr. Pattie and Miss Inman rendered a duet in a creditable style, and in response to an encore the gentleman sang a rollicking little gem. Columbus.

"Quarrel Among Flowers" was witnessed on Wednesday night at the opera house by a large erowd. The bright, sweet faces of the little children, each one representing a different flower, presented a pretty scene, and each sustained their parts very creditably. The grand march was decidedly the feature of the occasion. It was really remarkable to see with what precision they executed the different figures, and the perfect time they kept. It was surely gratifying to Misses Mollie Thomas, Susie and Carrie Swift and Annie Patten to see that their efforts were so successful.

Mr. Thomas H. Persons and Miss Lucy Kimbrough were married in Talbotton on Wednesday night. The groom is a son of Hon. The Columbusites have vied with each other this winter in making their beautiful city among the hilk, a very queen, for social gayety and innocent pleasure. Week after week the gay revelers "trip the," light fantastic toe," and now the masquerade, with its many varied, charming and grotesque costumes crown the departing season with new lauries. The saucy red lips, with their quick repartee, quells the over-confident admirer. The Romeo, with his fair Juliett; the haughty queen, arrayed in eastern magnificence; the sweet little buttercup; all combine to render the seene enchanting, and a looker-on in Venice might well imagine themselves in fairy land.

A happy marriage occurred at the residence of the bride's mother, Mrs. Martha Barrett, in Gordon county, on the afternoon of February 28, the Contracting parties being Mrs. Mary L. Crawford and W. F. King, of Calhoun, Ga. The bride is a most estimable lady, while no one in the state stands higher than the groom, being one of the most prominent residents of Gordon county. Mrs. King lives several years in Atlanta, where she many friends join in wishing them both long life and happiness.

ittle town, occurred on Thursday, February 25th, 1888, when Colonel Rufus H. Baker led to the altar Miss Fannie Lee Meaders. The ceremonies were conducted in the Methodist church, Rev. A. C. Thomas officiating. Through the skill and taste of Major W. C. Rofferty, assisted by several lady friends of the bride, the church was most beautifully and appropriately decorated.

The bridal party entered the church at 7:30 o'cleck p. m. to the strain of the wedding march, beautifully rendered by Mr. R. B. King on the violit, accompanied by his daughter, Miss Mamie, on the organ. The bride and groom were attended by Mr. H. L. Richardson and Miss Saille Rudolph, of Gainesville: Mr. Clay Johnson and Miss Corrie Allen, Mr. Louis Davis and Miss Mary Lewis, Professor W. F. Crusselle and Miss Saille Whelchel, Mr. Edward Meaders and Miss Suc Chamberlin and Major W. C. Rafferty and Miss Nellie McCreary, of Atlanta. Colonel Baker was dressed in full evening suit and was as handsome as an Adonis, Miss Meaders was lovely in a dress of white satin and brocaded silk "en train," with square corsage embroidered with peores-flowing veil and orange biossoms, bouquet of calla lilles and geraniums. The bridesmaids were charming—Miss Rudolph was in white mull with handsome embroidery and ribbon genuiture-gold ornaments. Miss Rudolph was fin white mull with handsome embroidery diamond ornament, diamonds. Miss Lewis wore cream nunsveiling, pompadour lace, gold jewelry, diamond ornament in the hair. Miss Whelchel's dress was pink nuns veiling, Spanish lace and irridescent headed corsage, gold jewelry. Miss Chamberlin wore sheer white organdie with panels, founcings and over dress of real valencienes lace and swiss embroidery, square corsage with cascades of lace, natural flowers and diamonds. Miss McCreary was in cream nuns veiling with pauels-reuers and plastron of scarlet satin, ornaments gold jewelry.

Mrs. Flowman, alias Detsy Hamilton, received quite an extensive ovation while here. She fully sustained her reputation, which is daily growing national. The ladies aid society have placed the Presbyterian church entirely out of debt by being so fortunate to secure the services of such a talented lady. By request she repeated her piece entitled, "The Country School Exhibition," which completely captivated her audience, which, on both occasions, represented the outture, refinement and intelligence of our community. She leaves our town with regrets of the people, whose good-will, admiration and love she has undoubtedly secured.

LaGrange.

Early yesterday (Saturday) morning it was whispered on the street that a marriage took place in town last night. Your correspondent, on investigation, learned that Mr. Joe E. Dunson and Miss Mamie Abraham were united in marriage at the residence of Captain Emmerson Swanson. Rev. Bruce, of the Presbyterian church.

It was a runaway match. It seems that there was some objection on the part of the young lady's parents, just what your correspondent is unable to learn. Mr. Dunson is a gentleman of fine character and very proficient in mercantile business. Mr. Dunson began clerking for Williams & Dunson some three or four years ago, and is now bookkeeper in the employ of Dunson & Evans. He has so conducted himself since he located in LaGrange as to win the confidence of the whole people.

Miss Abraham is the lovely daughter of Major A. D. Abraham, president of the Lagrange Banking and Trust company. She is a young lady of about eventeen summers, and of high culture, and quite pretty. She had a large circle of admiring friends.

Lexington.

Thursday morning our quiet little town was awakened from its drowsiness by the appearance of a young man and two laddes in a buggy, inquiring the whereabouts of the ordinary and justice of the peace. We knew at once that a marriage was on hand.

Mr. Lewis Saxon, the fortunate man, had stolen his loved one from the school house, with a lady friend, in the county, and made rapid progress to our little citty, distancing all followers. License was soon granted, and then Justice Lester was found, and in a twinkling Mr. Saxon and Miss Mary Johnson were united in the holy bans of wedlock. They quietly returned to their rural home with joy sparkling in their eyes, and hearts beating in unison with each other.

At the home of the bride's father, in this county, Mr. J. D. Jackson, of Wilkes county, was married to Miss Katic Young, on the evening of the 3lst ultimo, Rev. W. M. Coile officiating. The First Bluebird.

Come, come Mr. Bluebird, I've waited so long,
'Tis time you were building your nest!
Come, fly to my window and sing me a song,
You look rather sad and distressed; Pray, where is your mate? Can't you find her at

Can that be the reason you're dumb I'm sure she would answer if only you'd call, So don't be so silent and glum.

There's plenty of sunshine, the earth is like gold The sky is so pretty and blue;
So pray don't sit moping, but do as you're told—
'Tis always the best way to do.
I'm tired of the winter, its cold and its snow,
I'm weary of looking at ice,
I'm only too glad for the season to go,
I really don't think it is nice.

I've waited and waited, to sec you appear, But sore disappointed am I; I've seen the first bluebird, and now that you'

here,
I'm almost so sad I could cry!
You seem to be mute as you sit on that tree,
All muffled in blue to your eyes,
Just rocking and rocking and looking at me
As if I were such a surprise.;

I'm sure you could sing if you'd open your mouth There's music, I know, somewhere there; You could'nt have left it behind in the south— You could'nt have left it behind in the south— That country so sunny and fair; Unruffle your feathers and give me a song; Don't look so defiant, pray don't! For birds that know how and won't sing, lit is But what shall we do if they won't?

I have it, Poor Bluebird, the thought has just My scolding I truly deplore:
I'm sure that the reason you're drooping and dumb.

Is this, that YOUR THOAT MUST BE SORE. Forgive my upbraiding, of course you are ill,

Or else you'd be building your nest!

Fil give you some crumbs; now sit perfectly still

And do not be filled with unrest.

No mortal shall harm you; see, here is some food,
As nice as you'd want, I'll assure;
Here's some in the window, come see if its good!
These crumbs I'll throw by the door.
Ho, ho! you are hungry, quite hungry, I see;
Hop in on the carpet, pray do;
And here is some bread on the table by me—
It's waiting on purpose for you!

I've caught you my Bluebird! I'il just take a peer There wait till I fasten the door!— There wait iii I fasten the door!—
Now open your bill, try how still you can keep;
I'll see if your throat isn't sore.
'Tis just as I thought, very red and inflamed;
You truly must be very hoarse,
I'd call it "Croup" if it had to be named,—
'Tis very annoying of course.

But here is a drink that will help you I'm sure,
Now take it, dear Bluebird, there, please!
'Tis Sweet Gum and Mullein, the Cherokee Cure,
'Twill give you immediate ease.
See there, you are better: I'm proud of my skill!
Ah, soon you'll be building your nest,
And telling your mate as you twitter and trill—
The Cherokee Cure is the best!

Take that and no other. 'Tis simple and nice:
Of Sweet Gum and Mullein 'tis made,
By Walter A. Taylor at moderate price,
'Twill speedfly bring to you aid.
There, fly to that elm tree. Dear bird, how you sing!

My heart thrills with rapture indeed!
Now don't mind the card that I've tied to you 'Twill help you the swifter to speed.

It carries a line that the whole world may see,
The croups, asthmatic and ill,
"Take Cherokee Remedy!" All will agree
'Tis better than powder or pill.
'Tis made of the Sweet Gum and Mullein tha

IT CURED HIS COUGH

And it Will Cure Anyl ody's Cough. Read the following testimonial of a prominen outh Carolinian about Taylor's Sweet Gum and

Mullein:

EDGEFILD, S. C., March 4.—Dr. Walter A. Taylor, Dear Sir. I was attacked during the month of November with a severe cold and cough. After using everything without success. I was recommended a bottle of your Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullein. After using one jbottle and a half of the same I am almost entirely cured; and I should advise any one laboring under "the cough" to use it at once. Thanking you for this remedy, I remain very respectfully, J. H. Darby.

TAYLOR'S CHEROKEE REMEDY

Of Sweet Gum and Mullein. The sweet gum, as igathered from a tree of the same name, growing along the small streams in the Southern States, contains a stimulating expectorant principle that loosens the phlegm producing the early morning cough, and stimulates the child to throw off the false membrane in croup and whooping-cough. When combined with the healing mucilaginous principle in the Mullein plant of the fields, presents in TAYLOE'S CHEROKEE REMEDY OF SWEET GUM AND MULLEIN the finest known remedy for Coughs, Croup, Whooping-Cough and Consump it.

Ask your druggisst for it. 25c and $1.00 sizes. It he does not keep it, we will pay, for one time only express charges on large size bottle to any part of the U. S. on receipt of $1.00.
